You shall pay Prime up to Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) per occurrence toward the settlement of cargo losses directly caused by fire, collision, overturning of vehicle, collapse of bridges or docks, rising navigable waters or river floods, perils of the seas, lakes, rivers or inland water while on ferries only, and cyclone, tornado or windstorm. If cargo losses are caused by any peril other than those itemized above, You will pay Prime that portion of such losses and expenses for which Prime does not receive payment from their insurance carrier.

(c) Damage to Trailers. You shall pay Prime up to Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) per occurrence toward loss of, damage to, or liens for storage with respect to Prime's trailers which are used by You when such losses are covered by Prime's insurance. When the loss of, damage to, or liens for storage of Prime's trailers which are used by You are not covered by insurance, You shall pay for all such losses, including expenses and attorneys' fees.

(d) Authorization to Deduct. You hereby authorize Prime to deduct from Your Settlement all amounts due Prime under this paragraph 12. Prime shall provide You with a written explanation and itemization of any such deductions for cargo or property damage before such deductions are made.

(e) HOLD HARMLESS AND INDEMNIFICATION. YOU AGREE TO INDEMNIFY AND HOLD HARMLESS PRIME, ITS AFFILIATED COMPANIES AND THEIR RESPECTIVE OFFICERS, DIRECTOR, SHAREHOLDERS, EMPLOYEES, AGENTS, SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS, FROM AND AGAINST ANY AND ALL LIABILITIES AND EXPENSES WHATSOEVER, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, CLAIMS, DAMAGES, JUDGMENTS, AWARDS, SETTLEMENTS, INVESTIGATIONS, COSTS AND ATTORNEY'S FEES (COLLECTIVELY, "CLAIMS") WHICH ANY OF THEM MAY INCUR OR BECOME OBLIGATED TO PAY ARISING OUT OF YOUR ACTS OR OMISSION OR THOSE OF YOUR AGENTS AND EMPLOYEES (INCLUDING DRIVERS LEASED FROM PRIME). YOU FURTHER AGREE TO HOLD PRIME HARMLESS AND TO INDEMNIFY PRIME AGAINST ALL CLAIMS BY YOU AND YOUR AGENTS AND EMPLOYEES. I UNDERSTAND THAT THIS PARAGRAPH LIMITS MY RIGHTS AND I ACKNOWLEDGE MY OPTION TO SEEK INDEPENDENT LEGAL COUNSEL AND ADVICE.

13. OPERATING STATEMENT AND PAYROLL SERVICES. At your request, Prime may provide You with an operating statement, and You hereby authorize Prime to make a deduction from Your Settlement an amount as set forth in Schedule 3. In the event Prime provides services for Your co-drivers, You hereby authorize Prime to make a deduction from Your Settlement in amount as set forth in Schedule 3.

14. CITATIONS. At Your request, Prime shall provide You with administrative services in connection with citations You receive while operating under Prime's authority, and advance money for payment of them. You agree to pay and hereby authorize Prime to deduct from Your Settlement an amount equal to the fee as set forth in Schedule 3, as well as an amount equal to the payment made on Your behalf. You are under no obligation to submit Your citations to Prime for handling. However, You agree to report all citations to Prime.

15. FUEL CARD EXPRESS CODES/TRIP EXPRESS CHARGE. You agree that, in in the event You utilize Prime's fuel card system and express code transaction system, You will pay to Prime and hereby authorize Prime to deduct from Your Settlement an amount as set forth in Schedule 3.

16. TRACTOR PAYMENT DEDUCTION (IF APPLICABLE). You are leasing X or purchasing ___ (check one) Your tractor from SUCCESS LEASING Your payments are itemized in Schedule 2 attached hereto and made a part hereof. In addition, You are required by Your lessor or lender to place certain sums in reserve accounts as itemized in Schedule 2. By initialing Schedule 2 You authorize and request Prime to deduct those sums itemized in Schedule 2 from Your Settlement and forward them to Your lessor or lender. If the agreement with Your lessor or lender authorizes Prime to make deductions from Prime's Settlement with You for rental or purchase payments, You must provide Prime with a copy of that agreement and it shall be attached to this Agreement and made a part hereof by this reference.

17. ADDITIONAL SETTLEMENT DEDUCTIONS. From time to time, You may purchase fuel, products or services, including repairs, which are charged to Prime. When You do so, You hereby authorize Prime to deduct from Your Settlement amounts equal to such charges. You are never required to charge any amounts to Prime's account nor to make purchases from any vendor recommended by Prime. Further, if You lease Your tractor, You may be required by Your lessor to indemnify Your lessor for claims arising out of Your acts and omissions as well as those of Your agents and employees, and to pay for portions of any loss or damage to Your tractor. When Your lease requires any such payments, You hereby authorize Prime to deduct from Your settlement amounts equal to such charges.

18. RATIFICATION OF DEDUCTIONS. In paragraphs 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11(f), 12, 14, 17 and 19 of this Agreement, Prime has agreed to make certain advances to You or on Your behalf. You have agreed to allow Prime to make deductions from Your Settlement as reimbursement for those advances. Because those advances are not capable of determination at the time of the execution of this Agreement, they shall be disclosed to You from time to time in Your Settlement. To the extent Prime is required to disclose deductions to You, that requirement regarding any such deductions shall be deemed fulfilled through Prime providing You with a Settlement. However, upon request, Prime will provide You copies of those documents which are necessary to determine the validity of the charge. Computation of each item shall be on the basis of the actual amount of each advance, charge or expense. If You have not objected to any such deduction in writing within ninety (90) days of the date of the Settlement, the deduction shall be deemed ratified by You.

19. NEGATIVE BALANCE. If You have a negative balance on Your Settlement after calculating all payments due You, less all deductions authorized herein, and if Prime has not offset that negative amount against Your security deposit, You agree to pay to Prime interest on such negative balance at a rate equal to the average yield on Ninety-One-Day, Thirteen-Week Treasury Bills as established in the weekly auction by the Department of Treasury. Interest shall be paid on the average weekly amount of Your negative balance. If You have a substantial negative balance so that Your cash flow is affected, and if Prime agrees, You may convert some or all of that negative balance to periodic payments to Prime (the "Advance"). In that event You and Prime shall agree on the frequency of payments and You agree to pay to Prime interest on the Advance at the rate of 12% per annum. Provided, however, in the event the Prime Rate (of U. S. money center commercial banks as published in The Wall Street Journal) shall equal or exceed 10%, You agree to pay to Prime interest on the Advance at the Prime Rate plus 2%.

20. FREIGHT BILLS AND TARIFFS. Prime shall provide You with a copy of Prime's rated freight bill or a computer-generated document containing the same information, and, upon request, You shall have the right to examine Prime's tariffs at all reasonable times, as well as documents from which contract rates and charges are computed. Mileage is based on the latest version of the Household Goods Carrier's Bureau Mileage Guide, unless otherwise specified by Prime's customers.

21. PRIME'S SERVICES, PRODUCTS AND EQUIPMENT. You shall not be required to purchase or rent any products, equipment or services from Prime as a condition of entering into this Agreement. In the event that You elect to purchase or rent any products, equipment or services from or through Prime, You agree that Prime may deduct amounts due for such products, equipment or services from the compensation due You. You and Prime agree that such amounts will include the cost of such products, equipment or services and may include amounts to cover Prime's administrative costs, either direct or indirect, of securing, offering and maintaining such products, equipment and services.

22. TERMINATION. Either party may terminate this Agreement by giving thirty (30) days' written notice of such intention to the other party. In the event either party commits a material breach of this Agreement, the other shall have the right to terminate this Agreement by giving five (5) days' written notice of such intention. Shipping requirements of Prime's customers are an essential part of Prime's business, and failure to adhere to such requirements may be deemed to be a material breach of this Agreement. The DOT has charged Prime with the duty of requiring You to observe safety standards while operating the Equipment under Prime's authority. It is agreed that Prime may terminate this Agreement immediately if it has information or knowledge or belief that the safety of the public is being endangered by You or Your agents or employees in the operation of the Equipment. In the event this Agreement is terminated by either party or upon the expiration of this Agreement, You shall, within forty-eight (48) hours, return all of Prime's property to Prime at a location specifically designated by Prime. If You shall fail to return Prime's property as provided herein, You shall be responsible for all expenses incurred by Prime in securing the proper return of said property. Such expenses may be charged back against any amounts owed You by Prime.

23. NOTICES. All notices, requests, instructions, consents and other communications to be given pursuant to this Agreement shall be in writing and shall be deemed received (i) on the same day if delivered in person, by same day courier or by telegraph, telex or facsimile transmission; (ii) on the next day if delivered by overnight mail or courier; or (iii) on the date indicated on the return receipt, or if there is no such receipt, on the third calendar day (excluding Sundays) if delivered by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, to the party for whom intended to the following addresses:

If to Prime:	Manager, Contractor Relations P.O. Box 4208 Springfield, MO 65808
If to Contractor:	HALLMARK TRUCKING LLC 1125 BARBOUR AVENUE PORT CHARLOTTE FL 33948

Each party may, by written notice given to the other in accordance with this Agreement, change the address to which notices to such party are to be delivered.

24. RELATIONSHIP OF PARTIES. The parties intend to create by this Agreement the relationship of Carrier and Independent Contractor and not an employer/employee relationship. You are and shall be deemed for all purposes to be an Independent Contractor, not an employee of Prime. Neither You, Your employees, agents or servants, if any, are to be considered employees of Prime at any time, under any circumstance or for any purpose.

25. ASSIGNMENT. You shall not assign this Agreement or any rights or obligations hereunder to anyone without the written consent of Prime.

26. DESIGNATION OF PAYEE. You agree that, in the event there is more than one (1) individual named as the Contractor on the face page of this Agreement, that those persons so named will designate in writing which one of them shall be entitled to receive the weekly Settlement check due under the terms of this Agreement. Any change in such designation must be in writing and must be executed by all individuals named as Contractor herein. The purpose of this paragraph is to allow Prime to make one (1) Settlement check payable to one (1) of the individuals named as Contractor without retaining any exposure whatsoever for payment to the other named Contractor.

The following named Co-Contractor is hereby designated as the individual to receive all weekly Settlement checks in this name only:

27. MODIFICATION OF SCHEDULES. From time to time during the term of this Agreement amounts required to purchase insurance from a Prime affiliate or through Prime, lease or purchase payments, reserve account requirements, Qualcomm user fees and other like items may be changed from those amounts set forth on the Schedules attached hereto by the person making such charges. In such event and upon receipt in writing of notice of such modification by Prime from the person making the modification, Prime shall notify You in writing of such change. Unless You instruct Prime in writing to the contrary within ten (10) days of the date of Prime's notice to You, the appropriate Schedule shall be deemed modified to reflect the new amount being charged and the Schedule shall be deemed by the parties as being amended accordingly.

28. SET-OFF. You hereby grant to Prime the right of immediate set off against Your weekly Settlement of all amounts due from You to Prime under the terms of this Agreement.

29. LEASE EXPENSES ADVANCES. If You lease Your Tractor from Success Leasing, Inc. ("Success"), Your Lease contains financial obligations in addition] to Lease Charges, Excess Mileage Charge and Tire Replacement Reserve. Those additional obligations are found in paragraphs 10, 12, 14, 15, 17 and 19(d) of Your Lease. Those obligations may be advanced by Success or Prime on Your behalf. In the event they are, You hereby authorize Prime to deduct from Your Settlement or Your Performance Bond amounts equal to such advances and remit to the entity which made the advance. The amount deducted shall be the actual cost, of each such obligation.

THEREOF, AND ANY DISPUTES ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THE RELATIONSHIP CREATED BY THE AGREEMENT, AND ANY DISPUTES AS TO THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE PARTIES, INCLUDING THE ARBITRABILITY OF DISPUTES BETWEEN THE PARTIES, SHALL BE FULLY RESOLVED BY ARBITRATION IN ACCORDANCE WITH MISSOURI'S ARBITRATION ACT AND/OR THE FEDERAL ARBITRATION ACT. ANY ARBITRATION BETWEEN THE PARTIES WILL BE GOVERNED BY THE COMMERCIAL ARBITRATION RULES OF THE AMERICAN ARBITRATION ASSOCIATION (THE "RULES"). THE PARTIES SPECIFICALLY AGREE THAT NO DISPUTE MAY BE JOINED WITH THE DISPUTE OF ANOTHER AND AGREE THAT CLASS ACTIONS UNDER THIS ARBITRATION PROVISION ARE PROHIBITED. IN THE EVENT OF CONFLICT BETWEEN THE RULES AND THE PROVISIONS OF THIS AGREEMENT, THE PROVISIONS OF THIS AGREEMENT SHALL CONTROL. EXCEPTIONS/CLARIFICATIONS OF THE RULES INCLUDE: (i) THE PROCEEDINGS SHALL BE CONDUCTED BY A SINGLE, NEUTRAL ARBITRATOR TO BE SELECTED BY THE PARTIES, OR, FAILING THAT, APPOINTED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE RULES, (ii) THE SUBSTANTIVE LAW OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI SHALL APPLY, AND (iii) THE AWARD SHALL BE CONCLUSIVE AND BINDING. A DEMAND FOR ARBITRATION SHALL BE FILED NOT LATER THAN ONE (1) YEAR AFTER THE DISPUTE ARISES OR THE CLAIM ACCRUES, AND FAILURE TO FILE SAID DEMAND WITH THE ONE (1) YEAR PERIOD SHALL BE DEEMED

A FULL WAIVER OF THE CLAIM. THE PLACE OF THE ARBITRATION HEREIN SHALL BE SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI. BOTH PARTIES AGREE TO BE FULLY AND FINALLY BOUND BY THE ARBITRATION AWARD, AND JUDGMENT MAY BE ENTERED ON THE AWARD IN ANY COURT HAVING JURISDICTION THEREOF. THE PARTIES AGREE THAT THE ARBITRATION FEES SHALL SPLIT BETWEEN THE PARTIES, UNLESS CONTRACTOR SHOWS THAT THE ARBITRATION FEES WILL IMPOSE A SUBSTANTIAL FINANCIAL HARDSHIP ON CONTRACTOR AS DETERMINED BY THE ARBITRATOR, IN WHICH EVENT PRIME WILL PAY THE ARBITRATION FEES.

31. ENTIRE AGREEMENT. This Agreement shall be comprised of this document executed below by You and Prime as well as all Schedules initialed by You (as amended from time to time as herein provided). Together they constitute the entire agreement between the parties hereto and may not be modified or amended except by written agreement executed by both parties or, in the case of the Schedules, as otherwise herein provided.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR OPERATING AGREEMENT
SCHEDULE 1
Reefer Division

PAYMENT

Payments made to You by Prime under paragraph 3 of the Agreement shall be as follows:

1. PERCENTAGE OF REVENUE. Prime shall pay You 72% of the line haul revenue received by Prime for freight transported by You. The phrase "line haul revenue" means all amounts paid by Prime's customers for transportation of freight exclusive of accessorial charges. Accessorial charges are charges made by Prime to the customer for goods and services in addition to freight transportation, including but not limited to such things as loading and unloading, special permits, pallets, tarp fees and shag fees. Not all accessorial charges will be designated by the customer as separate from the "line haul revenue", but shall be itemized by Prime on the freight bill as a separate charge and for purposes of this paragraph shall not be included in the "line haul revenue". Examples are the following charges that shall be deducted from "line haul revenue" when determining payment to You: (i) all pallets that are not provided or paid for by the customer shall be charged up to $5.00 per pallet per load; (ii) all amounts paid by Prime to You or a third party for loading and unloading in excess of that paid by the customer; and (iii) all amounts paid by Prime to You or a third party for tarp and shag fees in excess of that paid by the customer. Prime may make surcharges to some customers for fuel (tractor and/or refrigerated unit) or for liability and cargo insurance above the minimum required by law. When these surcharges are made, they shall be so designated on Prime's freight bill and itemized as a separate charge. For purposes of this paragraph, such charges shall not be included in the "line haul revenue". In addition, all amounts paid by Prime to you for fuel surcharges (tractor and/or refrigerated unit) in excess of that paid by customer will be deducted from linehaul. All fuel surcharges collected from customer in excess of amounts paid to you by Prime shall be added to linehaul.

2. REVENUE AVERAGING. Subject to the terms, conditions and limitations contained in the Agreement, You shall receive no less than $1.02 per authorized dispatched mile while operating the truck. Revenue paid to You shall be reconciled every 100,000 authorized dispatched miles. If revenue paid You at any time during the reconciliation period averages below $1.02 per mile while operating the truck Prime shall make advances to You sufficient to bring Your average revenue up to the stated minimum. Thereafter, if your revenue increases sufficiently so as to average in excess of the stated minimum, Prime will be entitled to recover from You that portion of such advances that caused Your revenue to average above the stated minimum, and You authorize Prime to deduct such amount from Your Settlement.

3. RECOVERY UPON TERMINATION. If You terminate this Agreement prior to the end of any single reconciliation period, and You have averaged less than $1.02 per authorized dispatched mile while operating the truck, but have received advances up to that amount, You agree to repay Prime the difference between the actual average rate per mile and $1.02 per mile while operating the truck and agree that such amount may be deducted from Your security deposit.

4. EQUIPMENT. You agree to furnish Your own tools and equipment necessary for Your operations including, but not limited to, a pulp thermometer, two load locks, a trailer security lock approved by Prime, wrenches sufficient to adjust tractor and trailer brake assemblies, fire extinguisher, flashlight, and a minimum of three reflective/warning highway triangles.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

DOMINIC OLIVEIRA, on his own behalf and on behalf of all others similarly situated,

Plaintiff,

v.

NEW PRIME, INC.

Defendant.

Civil Action No. 1:15-cv-10603-PBS

FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT

Plaintiff, by and through his undersigned counsel, files this Class and Collective Action First Amended Complaint for unpaid wages against the above-listed Defendant.

This amendment is by right pursuant to F.R.C.P. 15(a)(1)(B).

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

1. Plaintiff Dominic Oliveira and those similarly situated are currently, or were formerly, employed by Defendant New Prime, Inc. ("New Prime") and, in many weeks, were paid less than minimum wage for each hour of work.

2. Plaintiff Oliveira and those similarly situated were directed to do training sessions for which they received no pay, both at the beginning of New Prime's "Paid Apprenticeship" program and before becoming either a company or independent contractor driver.

3. Because the Defendant paid the Plaintiff and those similarly situated, including employees labeled as trainees or independent contractors, by the mile but did not compensate for other on duty time, the Plaintiff and those similarly situated were not paid statutory minimum wage.

4. The Defendant violated the Fair Labor Standards Act, 29 U.S.C. §§ 201 et seq., and Missouri statutes related to wages and hours by failing to pay minimum wage for all hours worked in each workweek when due.

5. The Defendant's violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act and Missouri and Maine's labor laws were willful, malicious and deliberate.

6. Plaintiff Oliveira seeks compensation for the Defendant's violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act and Missouri's and Maine's minimum wage laws, on his own behalf and on behalf of all other similarly situated current and former employees (including those employees misclassified as independent contractors) of Defendant.

PARTIES, JURISDICTION, AND VENUE

7. Plaintiff Oliveira recently moved his permanent residency from Maine to Florida. At various times throughout his employment (as both a standard employee and as an employee misclassified as an independent contractor) Plaintiff Oliveira was a resident of Worcester County, Massachusetts.

8. Plaintiff Oliveira was employed by the Defendant at various times from approximately March 2013 through approximately June 2014.

9. Plaintiff Oliveira was employed by the Defendant New Prime, though classified as an independent contractor, from approximately May 2013 through approximately June 2014, and he was labeled an employee again for a brief period in the fall of 2014.

10. Plaintiff Oliveira's FLSA Consent to Sue is annexed hereto as Exhibit 1.

11. Defendant New Prime is a registered Missouri business corporation with a principal business address of 2740 North Mayfair, Springfield, MO 65803. At all relevant times, Defendant New Prime was doing business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

12. Jurisdiction is conferred upon this Court by 28 U.S.C. § 1331 because this case arises under the laws of the United States. Specifically, this action arises under the Fair Labor Standards Act, 29 U.S.C. §§ 201 et seq.

13. Plaintiff requests that this Court exercise supplemental jurisdiction over their claims under the laws of Missouri and Maine, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367.

14. Venue is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(2): the Plaintiff was permanently domiciled in Massachusetts when he was first employed, at various times while working for the Defendant he was in Massachusetts, and the Defendant conducts substantial business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS RELEVANT TO ALL CLAIMS

15. Defendant New Prime hired Plaintiff Oliveira and all others similarly situated as employees or employees misclassified as independent contractors.

16. Defendant New Prime has over $500,000 in gross receipts per year.

17. Defendant New Prime hired Plaintiff Oliveira and all others similarly situated to transport goods in interstate commerce.

18. Defendant New Prime employed two or more people, including the named Plaintiff, to handle and work on materials that move in interstate commerce.

DEFENDANT NEW PRIME FAILS TO PAY FOR TIME SPENT TRAINING

19. New Prime conducts a "Paid Apprenticeship CDL training" to train new drivers but also to get the benefit of their labor. Prime advertises this program as "On-the-Job" Truck Driver Training Program. Student Truck Driver Program, annexed hereto as exhibit 2, Paid Apprenticeship CDL Training, annexed hereto as exhibit 3.

20. New Prime tells the potential apprentices they won't have to pay tuition if they stay with New Prime for a year as either employee drivers or contractors.

21. The whole purpose of the tuition forgiveness plan after a year of service to New Prime is to make clear to the apprentices that there will be a position available when they finish, and also to make it economically difficult for the apprentices to not accept this position. Further, New Prime employees reassure the potential apprentices that they will have a position at the end of the program, barring unforeseen circumstances.

22. But even within the training program's structure, potential apprentices are promised a temporary spot on the payroll as B2 trainee drivers after about four weeks when they pass the CDL test, and therefore the apprentices understand that they will receive wages when they sign up for this paid apprenticeship.

23. After a serious application process, apprentices selected for the program attend a four-day orientation at New Prime's facility in Missouri.

24. The apprentices then drive with a New Prime driver for three to four weeks for a total of 10,000 miles. The drivers receive an advance of $200 per week for food that they are required to repay, but otherwise receive no remuneration.

25. Under U.S. Department of Transportation regulations drivers' driving time and non-driving "on duty" time are strictly regulated. A New Prime instructor driver must count his time supervising a trainee driver as on duty time but it does not count against driving time. A driver alone can only drive for 11 hours of his 14 hour period. But when he can use his extra duty hours to supervise a student he can often keep the truck moving for the entire period.

26. Because New Prime is able to move loads faster with these extra student drivers, it profits from their labor, and effectively replaces the work that other paid drivers would do with the work of these trainees.

27. In the third phase of the program the driver takes the CDL exam and then completes 30,000 miles as a "B2" company driver trainee. The drivers are paid wages of 14 cents per mile driven without regard to other compensable work time.

28. After this, employees take more orientation classes, and are then classified as either company drivers or independent contractors. Drivers receive a $100 bonus to become independent contractors. The orientations take about a week and are unpaid. This is a different orientation than at the beginning of the apprenticeship program.

DEFENDANT NEW PRIME ROUTINELY FAILS TO PAY MINIMUM WAGE TO TRAINEES

29. Plaintiff Oliveira entered the apprenticeship program in March of 2013.

30. Plaintiff Oliveira and the other apprentices were not paid for time spent in orientation either at the beginning of the program, or when before they started as company drivers or mislabeled independent contractors.

31. Plaintiff Oliveira and other employees similarly situated drove trucks and moved cargo in interstate commerce for New Prime.

32. Plaintiff Oliveira and other employees similarly situated delivered cargo as directed by New Prime.

33. In this period, Plaintiff Oliveira routinely worked many hours driving hundreds and often thousands of miles. He was often required to assist a second driver and/or alternate driving time. For all time he was in a New Prime truck he was either driving or otherwise working for New Prime in some capacity. Because he was away from his home on company duty and responsible for the company's property, he was working most of the time while dispatched.

34. New Prime's website for prospective apprentices says: "During your training period, you can expect to be out four to six weeks at a time. Once you complete training and upgrade to a solo company driver, you can expect to be out 3 to 4 weeks at a time (depending upon where you live), with a day off for every week you are out." Exh. 3.

35. Plaintiff Oliveira's pay was often reduced with deductions, including the $25 deduction to pay back the $200 advances from the first training period. Plaintiff Oliveira also received travel allowances. New Prime did not make employment tax deductions on this money, presumably because it covered expenses for the benefit of the employer, and therefore the allowances cannot be considered wages. See Drivers Payroll Recap dated 4/17/13, annexed hereto as exhibit 4.

36. On multiple occasions, despite working continuous tours of duty for entire weeks and driving thousands of miles, Plaintiff Oliveira was compensated less than minimum wage by New Prime.

37. Because of the nature of long haul trucking, Plaintiff Oliveira spent almost all of his time doing compensable work for New Prime. This included loading and unloading, protecting the company property, and doing many other tasks for New Prime's benefit away from his home. But New Prime only paid for those hours when the truck was actually moving.

38. Examples from the Plaintiff's employment records show that he was often not paid minimum wage.

a. for the week of April 17, 2013, Plaintiff Oliveira was paid for 6156 miles over a period of 8 days and had net wages, after deductions, of $482.85. It would only take 66.6 hours of work at the FLSA minimum to reach $482.85. Even just counting the time while the truck was moving at a generous speed of 65 miles per hour, Plaintiff Oliveira must have worked at least 94.71 hours. Exh. 4.

b. for the week of May 1, 2013, Plaintiff Oliveira was paid for 5653 miles over a period of 7 days and had net wages, after deductions, of $441.36. It would only take 60.9 hours of work at the FLSA minimum wage to reach $441.36. Even just counting the time while the truck was moving at a generous speed of 65 miles per hour, Plaintiff Oliveira worked at least 86.97 hours. Drivers Payroll Recap dated 5/01/13, annexed hereto as exhibit 5;

39. As described above, New Prime paid Plaintiff Oliveira on a per mile basis that often failed to bring his pay to the statutory minimum wage for each hour worked. New Prime paid other employee drivers similarly situated to Plaintiff Oliveira on a per mile basis and upon information and belief this often failed to bring their pay to the statutory minimum wage for each hour worked.

40. Defendant New Prime made unjustified deductions from the paychecks of Plaintiff Oliveira. Upon information and belief, Defendant New Prime made identical or similar deductions from the paychecks of other employees similarly situated to Plaintiff Oliveira. In many weeks these deductions brought the pay of Plaintiff Oliveira and those similarly situated under the statutory minimum wage for each hour worked.

DEFENDANT NEW PRIME MISCLASSIFIES EMPLOYEES AS INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS

41. After working as a trainee employee driver for New Prime in the Apprenticeship program, representatives of New Prime told Plaintiff Oliveira that he could make more money driving as an independent contractor than he could as an employee driver. Upon information and belief, New Prime representatives made similar promises to others similarly situated as Plaintiff Oliveira.

42. When he returned from his trainee driving, New Prime put him up in their hotel and fed him in his cafeteria while they walked him through the process of becoming an independent contractor driver.

43. First Plaintiff Oliveira was told pick three names for a new LLC. He was directed to go to a company on the second floor of New Prime's building called Abacus Accounting. They had him fill out a form and with his suggested names in ranked order and told him that they proceeded to create the LLC called Hallmark Trucking which was ready the next day.

44. He was then instructed to go to Success Leasing on the first floor of New Prime's building to look for a truck. Upon information and belief, Success Leasing is a closely related corporation to New Prime.

45. After selecting a truck, the Plaintiff was handed a pile of papers including documents for New Prime and Success and encouraged to sign and initial highlighted portions quickly so that he could get on the road. He was given no ability to negotiate these contracts except that he was later permitted to look for problems with the truck that would be fixed in the service center before he left. He felt pressure to complete this quickly because his load was waiting.

46. The Plaintiff was then instructed to go to the New Prime company store to buy security locks for his truck. He was also charged at the "fuel isle," where New Prime fuels and equips trucks, for all of the additional tools of the trade that added up to around $5000. This was then deducted at $75 per week.

47. The Plaintiff was not paid for his time setting up the LLC, selecting a truck, and equipping the truck, all of which were done under New Prime's direction. Upon information and belief similarly situated misclassified independent contractors were also not paid for this time.

48. Plaintiff Oliveira's job responsibilities driving while labeled as an independent contractor for New Prime were substantially identical to his job responsibilities as a New Prime employee driver.

49. Upon information and belief, others similarly situated to Plaintiff Oliveira, that were labeled as independent contractors, had job responsibilities substantially identical to the job responsibilities of employee drivers working for New Prime.

50. Defendant New Prime exercised operational and actual control over Plaintiff Oliveira and others similarly situated under similar, if not substantially identical, agreements through, among other things, either directly or indirectly controlling drivers' scheduling, vacations, home time, requiring drivers to take New Prime training courses and follow New Prime procedures, effectively requiring that drivers take certain shipments, and rendering drivers unable to work for other trucking and/or shipping companies. Because of the structure of lease payments, the drivers have no choice but to take shipments as directed by New Prime or they would quickly fall into default. The drivers bought insurance through a New Prime affiliated company.

51. These drivers perform the essential function of New Prime's transport business, New Prime has the ability to hire and fire them, New Prime controlled the manner and rate of pay, kept all pay records, and effectively controlled their schedule through its dispatch and QUALCOMM system. Upon information and belief, this QUALCOMM system could not easily be adapted to other carriers, and at least in the short term the drivers had no choice but to take New Prime loads. Because the drivers had no ability to work for other companies in the short term, and the lease payments were due regardless of what they did, they had no choice but to follow New Prime's dictates in the same manner as any employee.

DEFENDANT NEW PRIME INTENTIONALLY AND UNLAWFULLY FAILS TO PAY PLAINTIFF OLIVEIRA STATUTORY

MINIMUM WAGES WHILE MISLABELED AS AN INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR

52. While Plaintiff Oliveira was an employee of New Prime and misclassified as an independent contractor, New Prime often failed to pay Plaintiff Oliveira the statutory minimum wage. For example:

a. for the week of June 12, 2013, Plaintiff Oliveira was supposed to be paid for 1373 miles but after unjustified deductions, his pay was negative $296.48. Since he obviously worked many hours to drive over a thousand miles, the negative pay is a violation of both the FLSA and Missouri wage laws. Exh. 6;

b. for the week of July 17, 2013, Plaintiff Oliveira was supposed to be paid for 1517 miles, but after deductions his pay was negative $387.59. Since he obviously worked many hours to drive over a 1500 miles, the negative pay is a violation of both the FLSA and Missouri wage laws. Exh. 7;

c. for the week of June 4, 2014 Plaintiff Oliveira was supposed to be paid for 1040 miles, but after deductions his pay was negative $121.69. Exh. 8;

d. for the week of July 16, 2014 Plaintiff Oliveira was paid for 874 miles but after deductions that appear to be for the benefit of the employer his net pay was only $9.83. Again he wasn't paid close to the minimum wage for that time. Exh. 9;

e. for the week of July 30, 2014, Plaintiff Oliveira was paid for 2161 miles but after deductions his pay was negative $323.99. Because he was paid a negative amount he was obviously not paid minimum wage for all of his time, including at least 33 hours of actual driving. Exh. 10.

53. Defendant New Prime made unjustified, unpredictable, and poorly explained deductions from the paychecks of Plaintiff Oliveira. These deductions were often for items that are the tools of the trade or otherwise for the employer's benefit. Upon information and belief, Defendant New Prime made similar or identical deductions from the paychecks of employees including those misclassified as independent contractors similarly situated to Plaintiff Oliveira.

54. In many weeks while Plaintiff Oliveira was an employee of Defendant New Prime, Defendant New Prime intentionally and unlawfully paid Plaintiff Oliveira and all others similarly situated an amount less than the statutory minimum wage for each hour of work.

DEFENDANT NEW PRIME EMPLOYED THE PLAINTIFF AS A COMPANY DRIVER AND AGAIN FAILED TO PAY MINIMUM WAGE

55. Plaintiff Oliveira grew frustrated that the amount of pay and time off was not as great as he was led to believe and quit the on or around the end of September 2014.

56. In October of 2014 New Prime rehired Plaintiff Oliveira as a company driver. As a condition of employment he agreed that New Prime could deduct money from his checks to pay an alleged debt to Success Leasing.

57. During this period he was based out of his home in Maine and made shorter regional trips from the Wal-Mart distributor.

58. Defendant New Prime intentionally and unlawfully made significant deductions from pay that Defendant New Prime owed Plaintiff Oliveira upon the termination of his employment. Upon information and belief, New Prime made similar deductions from the pay of others similarly situated as Plaintiff Oliveira upon the termination of their employment.

59. Specifically during the week of November 26, 2014, Plaintiff Oliveira was paid for 1104 miles over a period of 8 days and had net wages, after deductions, of $55.94. While a $14 wage advance was probably a legal deduction, the other deductions were unwarranted. In order to drive the 1104 miles he had to have worked well in excess of 8 hours that would yield minimum wage. Exh. 11. Even just driving at 65 miles per hour without counting the rest of the compensable time, it would take approximately 17 hours to drive 1104 miles.

60. Therefore during that week, the Plaintiff was not paid minimum wage under the FLSA, Missouri, or Maine law.

61. Upon information and belief, the Defendant makes significant unlawful deductions from the paychecks of many employees including those misclassified as independent contractors in their last paycheck to cover costs that should be borne by the employer.

62. These deductions bring the pay below minimum wage for each hour worked.

63. The Plaintiff incorporates Exhibits 1-11 into his complaint. Exhibits 2 and 3 are excerpts from the Defendant's webpage. Exhibits 4-11 are New Prime's business records provided to Plaintiff's counsel by Defense counsel.

216(b) COLLECTIVE ACTION ALLEGATIONS

64. Plaintiff Oliveira asserts his Count I claim under the FLSA, pursuant to 29 U.S.C. § 216(b), on behalf of himself and on behalf of all other similarly situated employees currently and formerly employed by Defendants.

65. Pending any modifications necessitated by discovery, the named Plaintiff preliminarily defines the following classes:

216(b) Class: ALL CURRENT AND FORMER EMPLOYEES THAT DROVE FOR THE DEFENDANT, WHETHER OR NOT CATAGORIZED AS EMPLOYEES, TRAINEES, OR INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS WHO WERE NOT COMPENSATED FOR ALL TRAINING TIME, PAID BY THE MILE WITHOUT REGARD TO HOURS WORKED AND/OR HAD IMPROPER DEDUCTIONS TAKEN FROM THEIR PAYCHECKS

66. All potential 216(b) Class members are similarly situated because, among other things, they were all employees of Defendant and, upon information and belief, all suffered from the same policies of Defendant, including:

a. They were not paid for all training time;

b. They were paid by the mile without regard to the number of hours worked;

c. They each suffered from improperly made deductions from class members' paychecks; and

d. Defendant New Prime failed to pay class members at least statutory minimum wage for each hour of work as mandated by the FLSA.

RULE 23 CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

67. The named Plaintiff asserts his Counts II - III claims as a Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 class action on their own behalf and on behalf of a class for which Plaintiff seeks certification.

68. Pending any modifications necessitated by discovery, the named Plaintiff preliminarily defines the following classes:

Minimum Wage Class: ALL CURRENT AND FORMER EMPLOYEES THAT DROVE FOR THE DEFENDANT, WHETHER OR NOT CATAGORIZED AS EMPLOYEES, TRAINEES, OR INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS WHO WERE NOT COMPENSATED FOR ALL TRAINING TIME, PAID BY THE MILE WITHOUT REGARD TO HOURS WORKED AND/OR HAD IMPROPER DEDUCTIONS TAKEN FROM THEIR PAYCHECKS

69. Upon information and belief, Defendant New Prime did not pay the putative Minimum Wage Class members the statutory minimum wage for all hours of work in many workweeks.

70. The class is so numerous that joinder of all potential class members is impracticable. Plaintiffs do not know the exact size of the class since that information is within the control of Defendants.

71. The named Plaintiff estimates that there are thousands of similarly situated people. Defendant New Prime operates nationally and hires individuals, as both employees and "independent contractors," from the entirety of the continental United States.

72. Based on the number of employees (and employees misclassified as independent contractors) and the national range of Defendant New Prime's business, the named Plaintiff therefore estimates that the class is made up of thousands of current and former employees (and former employees misclassified as independent contractors) of Defendant New Prime. The exact size of the class will be ascertainable from Defendant New Prime's records.

73. There are questions of law or fact common to the classes that predominate over any individual issues that might exist. Common questions of law and fact include: whether Defendants paid their employees (and employees misclassified as independent contractors) at least minimum wage; whether Defendant New Prime improperly failed to pay their former employees (and former employees misclassified as independent contractors) all wages due upon their termination.

74. The class claims asserted by the Plaintiff are typical of the claims of all of the potential class members. This is an uncomplicated case of unpaid wages that should be mathematically ascertainable from business and computer tracking records and the class claims are typical of those pursued by victims of these violations. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy because numerous identical lawsuits alleging similar or identical causes of action would not serve the interests of judicial economy.

75. The named Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect and represent the interests of each class. He was both an employee misclassified as an independent contractor of Defendant New Prime and a standard correctly classified employee of Defendant New Prime and was a victim of the same violations of law as other class members, i.e., the failure to compensate employees (and employees misclassified as independent contractors) with the statutory minimum wage for each hour of work.

76. The named Plaintiff is represented by counsel experienced in wage and hour litigation and class actions.

77. The prosecution of separate actions by the individual potential class members would create a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to individual potential Class Members that would establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendants.

78. Each class member's claim is relatively small. Thus, the interest of potential class members in individually controlling the prosecution or defense of separate actions is slight. In addition, public policy supports the broad remedial purposes of class actions in general and the pertinent state laws are appropriate vehicles to vindicate the rights of those employees with small claims as part of the larger class.

79. The Plaintiff is unaware of any members of the putative classes who are interested in presenting their claims in a separate action.

80. The Plaintiff is unaware of any pending litigation commenced by members of any of the classes concerning the instant controversy.

81. It is desirable to concentrate this litigation in one forum.

82. This class action will not be difficult to manage due to the uniformity of claims among the class members and the susceptibility of wage and hour cases to both class litigation and the use of representative testimony and representative documentary evidence.

83. The contours of the class will be easily defined by reference to payroll documents Defendant New Prime was legally required to create and maintain, pursuant to FLSA and its regulations, including 29 C.F.R. § 516.2 along with truck log records and GPS data. Notice will be easily distributed as all members of the putative class are or were recently employed by Defendant New Prime, who was required to create and maintain records containing the mailing addresses of each such class member.

103. The wage term in the contract is illegal and void. It must be replaced in quantum meruit at the reasonable value of the Plaintiff's labor, or alternatively, at minimum wage.

104. The Defendant breached this contract by failing to pay all wages due.

105. The Defendant owes damages in law and equity, or alternatively, must be disgorged from his ill-gotten gains.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

DOMINIC OLIVEIRA, Plaintiff v. NEW PRIME, INC., Defendant	Civil Action No. 15-10603-PBS

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

October 26, 2015

Saris, C.J.

INTRODUCTION

This case involves a labor dispute between a trucking corporation and a former truck driver. In March 2015, the plaintiff Dominic Oliveira brought this proposed class action alleging that the defendant New Prime, Inc. violated the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), 29 U.S.C. §§ 201 et seq., and Missouri and Maine labor laws, by failing to pay its truck drivers minimum wage (Docket Nos. 1, 33). New Prime moved to compel arbitration under § 4 of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S.C. § 4, and two operating agreements signed by Oliveira on behalf of Hallmark Trucking LLC, both of which contain an arbitration clause (Docket No. 35). Oliveira argues that the Court must determine whether the operating agreements are exempt from arbitration under § 1 of the FAA before it can consider New Prime's motion to compel arbitration (Docket No. 40). New Prime maintains that the exemption's application is a threshold question of arbitrability that the parties delegated to the arbitrator in the operating agreements (Docket No. 51). After hearing, I agree that it is for the Court, and not the arbitrator, to decide whether the § 1 exemption applies before considering the motion. The motion to compel arbitration is therefore DENIED without prejudice.[1]

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The following facts are taken from the First Amended Complaint (Docket No. 33) and the operating agreements referenced by all parties (Docket No. 36, Ex. A, Ex. B). In March 2013, Plaintiff Dominic Oliveira entered Defendant New Prime's "Paid Apprenticeship" training program, which is advertised as an on-the-job training program for new truck drivers. Docket No. 33, Ex. 2, Ex. 3. Apprentices first obtain a Missouri Commercial Driver's License (CDL) permit. They next shadow New Prime drivers for three to four weeks and drive 10,000 miles under supervision. During this time, apprentices receive an advance of $200 per week, which is subtracted from their future earnings, but otherwise receive no remuneration. As a result, apprentices are essentially free labor while they train with New Prime. Under Department of Transportation regulations, trucks can be on the road for longer periods of time when a New Prime driver switches off with an apprentice.

[1] Alternatively, New Prime argues that the Court should dismiss the case for improper venue because the arbitration clause states that arbitration is to take place in Missouri. If the case remains in this Court and moves forward, New Prime moves to dismiss Oliveira's breach of contract/unjust enrichment claim (Count 3), arguing that it is preempted by the FLSA and the Federal Aviation Administration Authorization Act. The Court will not address these issues until the threshold issue of exemption is resolved.

After completion of this on-the-road instruction, apprentices take a CDL exam and then work as a "B2" company driver trainee for 30,000 miles. During this period, the trainees earn fourteen cents per mile driven, but are not paid for time spent loading and unloading cargo or protecting company property. The company also regularly deducts money from paychecks, including the $200 weekly advance from the apprenticeship program. As a result of these deductions, Oliveira received approximately $440-$480 per week for driving 5,000-6,000 miles, which equates to about $4/hour while driving.

Finally, after completing the 30,000 miles as a B2 company driver trainee, the truck drivers complete additional orientation classes, which last for about a week. They are then classified as either company drivers or independent contractors. The truck drivers are not paid for the time spent in the orientation classes, and receive a $100 bonus if they opt to become independent contractors.

In May 2013, when Oliveira returned from his trainee driving, New Prime told Oliveira that he could make more money if he became an independent contractor. New Prime directed him to a company called Abacus Accounting, which was located on the second floor of New Prime's building. Abacus Accounting told Oliveira to provide suggested names for a limited liability company (LLC), and then created Hallmark Trucking LLC on his behalf. New Prime also directed Oliveira to Success Leasing, a closely related corporation to New Prime, to select a truck.

At Success Leasing, Oliveira was given several documents to sign. One of these documents was titled "INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR OPERATING AGREEMENT," which repeatedly states that the intent of the agreement is to establish an independent contractor relationship between New Prime and Hallmark Trucking LLC. Docket No. 36, Ex. A, at 1, 9. The agreement also contains the following arbitration clause:

> GOVERNING LAW AND ARBITRATION. THIS AGREEMENT SHALL BE GOVERNED BY THE LAWS OF MISSOURI. ANY DISPUTES ARISING UNDER, ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THIS AGREEMENT, INCLUDING AN ALLEGATION OF BREACH THEREOF, AND ANY DISPUTES ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THE RELATIONSHIP CREATED BY THE AGREEMENT, AND ANY DISPUTES AS TO THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE PARTIES, INCLUDING THE ARBITRABILITY OF DISPUTES BETWEEN THE PARTIES, SHALL BE FULLY RESOLVED BY ARBITRATION IN ACCORDANCE WITH MISSOURI'S ARBITRATION ACT AND/OR THE FEDERAL ARBITRATION ACT . . . THE PARTIES SPECIFICALLY AGREE THAT NO DISPUTE MAY BE JOINED WITH THE DISPUTE OF ANOTHER AND AGREE THAT CLASS ACTIONS UNDER THIS ARBITRATION PROVISION ARE PROHIBITED . . . THE PLACE OF THE ARBITRATION HEREIN SHALL BE SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI.

Id. at 10. Oliveira "felt pressure" to sign quickly because New Prime had a load waiting for him outside. Docket No. 33, ¶ 45. Success Leasing then instructed Oliveira to go to the New Prime company store to purchase security locks, fuel, insurance, and other tools of the trade. These items totaled roughly $5,000, which New Prime then deducted from his paycheck at a rate of $75 per week.

Although New Prime labeled Oliveira an independent contractor in the operating agreement, his role as a truck driver for New Prime did not change from his time as an apprentice and trainee driver. New Prime continued to directly and indirectly control Oliveira's scheduling, vacations, and time at home by requiring him to take specific training courses and follow certain procedures. These courses and procedures limited which shipments he could take and made it difficult, if not impossible, for him to work for other trucking or shipping companies. In particular, New Prime dispatched drivers through a "QUALCOMM system" that was not adaptable to other carriers. Docket No. 33, ¶ 51.[2]

Meanwhile, New Prime continued to make regular deductions from Oliveira's paycheck, ostensibly because of lease payments on the truck and payments for the other tools that New Prime instructed him to buy. On several occasions, his weekly pay was negative after spending dozens of hours on the road. In March 2014, Oliveira signed a second contract titled "INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR OPERATING AGREEMENT" on behalf of Hallmark Trucking LLC, which contains an identical arbitration clause to that in the first agreement. Docket No. 36, Ex. B, at 1, 9-10. The second contract also repeatedly states that the agreement establishes an independent contractor relationship between New Prime and Hallmark Trucking LLC.

Oliveira terminated his contract with New Prime in September 2014. The next month, however, New Prime rehired him as a company driver on the condition that New Prime would continue deducting money from his paychecks to repay an alleged debt to Success Leasing. With these deductions, Oliveira again was paid below the minimum wage. He now brings this class action, arguing that he and other New Prime drivers were not paid the minimum wage under federal and state law.

DISCUSSION

I. Statutory Framework

Congress enacted the FAA in 1925 in "response to hostility of American courts to the enforcement of arbitration agreements, a judicial disposition inherited from then-longstanding English practice." Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams, 532 U.S. 105, 111 (2001). To give effect to this purpose, § 2 of the FAA provides that written arbitration agreements "shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract." 9 U.S.C. § 2; see also Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 111. In short, § 2 "is a congressional declaration of a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements." Moses H. Cone Mem'l Hosp. v. Mercury Constr. Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24 (1983); see also Gilmer v. Interstate/Johnson Lane Corp., 500 U.S.

20, 25 (1991). "At a minimum, this policy requires that ambiguities as to the scope of the arbitration clause itself must be resolved in favor of arbitration." PowerShare, Inc. v. Syntel, Inc., 597 F.3d 10, 15 (1st Cir. 2010) (internal quotation marks and alterations omitted).

The Act provides two mechanisms through which federal courts may enforce § 2's liberal policy favoring arbitration. See Rent-A-Center, West, Inc. v. Jackson, 561 U.S. 63, 68 (2010). Section 3 instructs district courts to stay the trial of an action "upon any issue referable to arbitration under an agreement in writing for such arbitration" once the court is "satisfied that the issue involved in such suit or proceeding is referable to arbitration under such an agreement." 9 U.S.C. § 3. Section 4 allows any party "aggrieved" by the failure of another party "to arbitrate under a written agreement for arbitration" to petition a district court for "an order directing that such arbitration proceed in the manner provided for in such agreement." Id. § 4. The district court "shall" order arbitration upon being satisfied that "the making of the agreement for arbitration or the failure to comply therewith is not in issue." Id.

Despite the FAA's broad purpose and strong language, the Act does not extend to all arbitration agreements. Section 2 limits its application to contracts "evidencing a transaction involving commerce," or arising from a "maritime transaction." 9 U.S.C. § 2. More importantly for purposes of the present dispute, § 1, titled "exceptions to operation of title," states "nothing herein contained shall apply to contracts of employment of seamen, railroad employees, or any other class of workers engaged in foreign or interstate commerce." Id. § 1. Section 1 thus exempts "contracts of employment of transportation workers" from the FAA entirely. Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 119. Employment contracts involving truck drivers fall within the transportation worker exception. See, e.g., Lenz v. Yellow Transp., Inc., 431 F.3d 348, 351 (8th Cir. 2005) (holding that a truck driver, but not a customer service representative, is a transportation worker under § 1); Harden v. Roadway Package Sys., Inc., 249 F.3d 1137, 1140 (9th Cir. 2001) (holding that a truck driver was exempt from the FAA under § 1); Am. Postal Workers Union v. United States Postal Serv., 823 F.2d 466, 473 (11th Cir. 1987) (noting that courts have limited the § 1 exemption to "workers actually engaged in interstate commerce, including bus drivers and truck drivers" (internal quotation marks omitted)).

The FAA does not define the term "contract of employment." See 9 U.S.C. § 1. Although neither the Supreme Court nor the First Circuit has directly addressed the issue, courts generally agree that the § 1 exemption does not extend to independent contractors. See, e.g., Carney v. JNJ Express, Inc., 10 F. Supp. 3d 848, 852-53 (W.D. Tenn. 2014) ("If the [plaintiffs] are independent contractors, their claims are arbitrable under the FAA."); Villalpando v. Transguard Ins. Co. of Am., 17 F. Supp. 3d 969, 982 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (same); Port Drivers Fed'n 18, Inc. v. All Saints, 757 F. Supp. 2d 463, 472 (D.N.J. 2011) (same); Owner-Operator Indep. Drivers Ass'n v. Swift Transp. Co., 288 F. Supp. 2d 1033, 1035-36 (D. Ariz. 2003) (same). This construction comports well with "the FAA's purpose of overcoming judicial hostility to arbitration," and the Supreme Court's instruction "that the § 1 exclusion provision be afforded a narrow construction" in light of that purpose. Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 118 (holding that § 1 only exempts employment contracts of transportation workers from the FAA's reach, not all employment contracts).[3]

II. Analysis

Oliveira's relationship with New Prime can be divided into three periods of time: (1) March 2013 to May 2013, when Oliveira worked for New Prime through the apprenticeship program and as a B2 company driver trainee; (2) May 2013 to September 2014, when Oliveira worked for New Prime under the two operating agreements; and (3) post-October 2014, when New Prime rehired Oliveira as a company driver.[4] Under the statutory framework discussed above, the FAA's application to the present case hinges on whether Oliveira had a contract of employment or an independent contractor relationship with New Prime—and thus falls within or outside the § 1 transportation worker exemption— during each of these three time periods. New Prime appears to concede that Oliveira was an employee in the first and third time periods, and instead argues that the arbitration clause in the operating agreements should extend retroactively and prospectively to cover these intervals.

More specifically, New Prime maintains that Oliveira's claims from his time as an "employee driver" before signing the operating agreements, and after he was rehired as a company driver, fall within the scope of the arbitration clause for two reasons.

[3] The parties do not dispute that Oliveira was a transportation worker under § 1.

[4] The parties do not specify when Oliveira's relationship with New Prime ended permanently.

Docket No. 51, at 7. First, Oliveira's "allegations related to his time as an employee are inextricably related to his decision to become an independent contractor and enter into the Agreements." Id. Next, New Prime contends that the arbitration clause "is very broad and clearly applies to 'any disputes as to the rights and obligations of the parties.'" Id. (quoting Docket No. 36, Ex. A, at 10, Ex. B, at 9-10). New Prime cites to Kristian v. Comcast Corp., 446 F.3d 25, 33-35 (1st Cir. 2006) for the proposition that an arbitration agreement can be applied retroactively if broadly phrased to include claims or disputes that arose prior to signing the agreement.[5]

At this stage in the proceeding, these arguments fail, because they do not address the applicability of the § 1 transportation worker exemption. If Oliveira was an employee in the first and third time periods, then the § 1 exemption applies and the Court cannot order the parties to arbitrate any claims that arose before Oliveira signed the operating agreements or after New Prime rehired Oliveira as a company driver in October 2014. That said, the parties dispute whether Oliveira was an employee or independent contractor during at least the second time period, and whether it is for the Court or the arbitrator to decide the threshold question of the FAA's applicability.

A. Gateway Questions of Arbitrability

[5] New Prime does not cite, and the Court is not aware of, any cases in which a court applied an arbitration agreement to claims arising after termination of the contract containing the arbitration clause.

The Supreme Court has repeatedly emphasized that "arbitration is a matter of contract and a party cannot be required to submit to arbitration any dispute which he has not agreed so to submit." Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 537 U.S. 79, 83 (2002); First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan, 514 U.S. 938, 942-43 (1995); Steelworkers v. Warrior & Gulf Navigation Co., 363 U.S. 574, 582 (1960). Parties can agree to allow arbitrators decide "gateway questions of arbitrability, such as whether the parties have agreed to arbitrate or whether their agreement covers a particular controversy." Rent-A-Center, 561 U.S. at 68-69 (internal quotation marks and alterations omitted). "An agreement to arbitrate a gateway issue is simply an additional, antecedent agreement the party seeking arbitration asks the federal court to enforce, and the FAA operates on this additional arbitration agreement just as it does on any other." Id. at 69. An agreement granting the arbitrator authority to decide threshold questions of arbitrability is generally referred to as a "delegation provision." See id. at 68.

Questions of arbitrability, however, are an exception to the federal policy favoring arbitration agreements. Howsam, 537 U.S. at 83; Kristian, 446 F.3d at 37-38. "Courts should not assume that the parties agreed to arbitrate arbitrability unless there is clear and unmistakable evidence that they did so." First Options, 514 U.S. at 944 (internal quotation marks and alterations omitted); see also Howsam, 537 U.S. at 83 ("The question whether the parties have submitted a particular dispute to arbitration, i.e., the question of arbitrability, is an issue for judicial determination unless the parties clearly and unmistakably provide otherwise." (internal quotation marks and alterations omitted)). In short, courts must enforce valid delegation provisions under the FAA, but courts scrutinize delegation clauses more closely to ensure the parties manifested a clear intent to delegate questions of arbitrability to the arbitrator.

Here, the parties do not contest that the two operating agreements Oliveira signed on behalf of Hallmark Trucking LLC contain valid delegation provisions. The contracts' arbitration clauses state in relevant part: "ANY DISPUTES AS TO THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE PARTIES, INCLUDING THE ARBITRABILITY OF DISPUTES BETWEEN THE PARTIES, SHALL BE FULLY RESOLVED BY ARBITRATION . . ." Docket No. 36, Ex. A, at 10, Ex. B, at 9-10 (emphasis added). Furthermore, as New Prime emphasizes, the arbitration clauses also incorporate the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association (AAA). Id. Ex. A, at 10, Ex. B, at 9-10 ("ANY ARBITRATION BETWEEN THE PARTIES WILL BE GOVERNED BY THE COMMERCIAL ABRITRATION RULES OF THE AMERICAN ARBITRATION ASSOCIATION."). The Rules provide that "[t]he arbitrator shall have the power to rule on his or her own jurisdiction, including any objections with respect to the existence, scope, or validity of the arbitration agreement or to the arbitrability of any claim or counterclaim." Am. Arbitration Ass'n Commercial Arbitration R. & Mediation P. R-7(a). Thus, the parties have agreed to arbitrate gateway questions of arbitrability.

Oliveira argues that the arbitration clauses, including the delegation provisions, should not be enforced because the operating agreements are substantively and procedurally unconscionable. This argument fails, however, because Oliveira seeks to invalidate the contracts as a whole rather than the delegation provisions, or even the arbitration clauses, specifically. See Rent-A-Center, 561 U.S. at 72 ("Accordingly, unless Jackson challenged the delegation provision specifically, we must treat it as valid under § 2, and must enforce it under §§ 3 and 4, leaving any challenge to the validity of the Agreement as a whole for the arbitrator."); Buckeye Check Cashing, Inc. v. Cardegna, 546 U.S. 440, 449 (2006) ("[A] challenge to the validity of the contract as a whole, and not specifically to the arbitration clause, must go to the arbitrator.").

B. Applicability of the Transportation Worker Exemption

The delegation provisions and the AAA Rules do not resolve this matter, because they cannot, and do not, address whether the applicability of the § 1 transportation worker exemption is a question of arbitrability that parties can legally delegate to an arbitral forum in the first place. New Prime argues that the exemption's application is merely a gateway question of arbitrability that the parties delegated to the arbitrator. Oliveira maintains that "questions regarding statutory exemptions to arbitration agreements" under the FAA, including the § 1 exemption, are not questions of arbitrability at all, but a threshold matter that courts must resolve before considering a motion to compel. Docket No. 40, at 3.

Neither the First Circuit nor Supreme Court has answered the central question in this case: does a district court have to determine the applicability of the FAA § 1 exemption itself, or is the exemption issue just another gateway question of arbitrability that contracting parties may validly delegate to an arbitrator? The Ninth Circuit has held that the "district court must make an antecedent determination that a contract is arbitrable under Section 1 of the FAA before ordering arbitration pursuant to Section 4." In re Van Dusen, 654 F.3d 838, 843 (9th Cir. 2011). Meanwhile, the Eighth Circuit has adopted the opposite viewpoint: it characterizes the applicability of the § 1 exemption as a "threshold question of arbitrability" that parties "can agree to have arbitrators decide." Green v. SuperShuttle Int'l, Inc., 653 F.3d 766, 769 (8th Cir. 2011). This Court finds the Ninth Circuit's analysis more persuasive and adopts its approach for the reasons that follow.

In Green v. SuperShuttle International, Inc., current and former airport shuttle bus drivers brought suit against SuperShuttle "alleging violations of the Minnesota Fair Labor Standards Act (MFLSA) arising from SuperShuttle's alleged misclassification of its drivers as franchisees rather than employees." Id. at 767. The bus drivers had all signed the same franchise agreement that contained both an arbitration clause and a delegation provision. Id. at 768. When SuperShuttle moved to compel arbitration under the agreement and § 4 of the FAA, Green—on behalf of all the drivers—argued that "the district court lacked jurisdiction to compel arbitration because the FAA exempts transportation workers." Id. at 768-69.

The Eight Circuit held that the application of the § 1 transportation worker exemption "is a threshold question of arbitrability in the dispute between Green and SuperShuttle." Id. at 769. The court emphasized that the franchise agreements "specifically incorporated the Rules of the American Arbitration Association (AAA)," which "provide that an arbitrator has the power to determine his or her own jurisdiction over a controversy between the parties." Id. at 769. The court concluded that by incorporating the AAA Rules, "the parties agreed to allow the arbitrator determine threshold questions of arbitrability," and "thus the district court did not err in granting the motion to compel arbitration." Id.

In contrast, when faced with an analogous scenario, the Ninth Circuit analyzed whether the district court must assess the applicability of the § 1 exemption before ordering arbitration in detail. In In re Van Dusen, two interstate truck drivers entered "independent contractor operating agreements" with Swift Transportation Company. 654 F.3d at 840. The agreements contained both an arbitration clause and a delegation provision. Id. at 840-42. Despite these provisions, the plaintiffs filed suit against Swift and Interstate Equipment Leasing, Company in federal district court alleging violations of the FLSA and of California and New York labor laws. Id.

The In re Van Dusen defendants moved to compel arbitration pursuant to the arbitration clauses in the operating agreements, and the plaintiffs retorted that the contracts were exempt from arbitration under § 1 of the FAA. Id. The district court "declined to rule on the applicability of the exemption, holding that the question of whether an employer/employee relationship existed between the parties was a question for the arbitrator to decide in the first instance." Id. After the district court denied certification for an interlocutory appeal, the plaintiffs sought mandamus relief from the Ninth Circuit. Id.

The Ninth Circuit held[6] that the applicability of the § 1 transportation worker exemption is not a question of arbitrability that the parties may delegate to an arbitrator. Id. at 843-45. The court explained that because a "district court's authority to compel arbitration arises under Section 4 of the FAA," a district court "has no authority to compel arbitration under Section 4 where Section 1 exempts the underlying contract from the FAA's provisions." Id. at 843. "Section 4 has simply no applicability where Section 1 exempts a contract from the FAA, and private parties cannot, through the insertion of a delegation clause, confer authority upon a district court that Congress chose to withhold." Id. at 844. The court emphasized that "whatever the contracting parties may or may not have agreed upon is a distinct inquiry from whether the FAA confers authority on the district court to compel arbitration." Id.

As the Ninth Circuit highlighted, its holding is consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Bernhardt v. Polygraphic Co. of America, 350 U.S. 198 (1956). See In re Van Dusen, 654 F.3d at 844 (citing Bernhardt, 350 U.S. at 201-02). In Bernhardt, the Supreme Court held that a district court lacked authority to stay litigation pending arbitration under § 3 of the FAA where the underlying contract containing the arbitration agreement did not evidence a "transaction involving commerce" within §§ 1 and 2 of the Act. Bernhardt, 350 U.S. at 201-02. The In re Van Dusen court concluded that this reasoning regarding the relationship between Sections 1, 2, and 3 of the Act "applies with equal force in interpreting the relationship between Sections 1, 2, and 4 of the FAA." In re Van Dusen, 654 F.3d at 844. Based on this analysis, this Court holds that the question of whether the § 1 exemption applies is for the Court, and not the arbitrator, to decide.

New Prime argues that the arbitrator must decide whether the § 1 exemption applies because otherwise the Court would address the merits of the underlying dispute. More specifically, New Prime maintains that "the issue of whether the Plaintiff was an independent contractor or an employee is plainly entangled in the merits of Plaintiff's underlying claims arising out of his alleged misclassification." Docket No. 51, at 6. On a second appeal in the Van Dusen case,[7] the Ninth Circuit rejected a similar argument, stressing that its prior opinion "expressly held that a district court must determine whether an agreement for arbitration is exempt from arbitration under § 1 of the [FAA] as a threshold matter." Id. The Ninth Circuit directed the district court to "determine whether the Contractor Agreements between each appellant and Swift are exempt under § 1 of the FAA" before considering Swift's motion to compel on remand. Id. Thus, this Court must keep on trucking

[7] After the Ninth Circuit denied the writ of mandamus, the plaintiffs moved "for reconsideration of the grant of Swift Transportation Co. Inc.'s motion to compel arbitration." Van Dusen v. Swift Transp. Co., Inc., 544 Fed. App'x 724, 724. The district court denied the motion for reconsideration, but certified a request for an interlocutory appeal. Van Dusen v. Swift Transp. Co., No. 2:10-CV-00899 JWS, 2011 WL 3924831, at *3 (D. Ariz. Sept. 7, 2011).

in the present case to determine whether the two operating agreements Oliveira signed on behalf of Hallmark Trucking LLC are contracts of employment within the § 1 exemption.

ORDER

The defendant's motion to compel arbitration and stay proceedings, and/or dismiss the case for improper venue, or, in the alternative, to dismiss Count III for failure to state a claim (Docket No. 35) is DENIED without prejudice. The parties may conduct factual discovery on the threshold question of the plaintiff's status as an employee or independent contractor until January 8, 2016. Any motions for summary judgment shall be filed by January 22, 2016.

THOMPSON, Circuit Judge. This case raises two questions of first impression in this circuit. First, when a federal district court is confronted with a motion to compel arbitration under the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA or Act), 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16, in a case where the parties have delegated questions of arbitrability to the arbitrator, must the court first determine whether the FAA applies or must it grant the motion and let the arbitrator determine the applicability of the Act? We hold that the applicability of the FAA is a threshold question for the court to determine before compelling arbitration under the Act. Second, we must decide whether a provision of the FAA that exempts contracts of employment of transportation workers from the Act's coverage, see id. § 1 (the § 1 exemption), applies to a transportation-worker agreement that establishes or purports to establish an independent-contractor relationship. We answer this question in the affirmative. Accordingly, we affirm the district court's order denying the motion to compel arbitration and dismiss this appeal for lack of appellate jurisdiction.

Background[1]

The defendant, New Prime, Inc. (Prime), operates an interstate trucking company. Under its Student Truck Driver Program (apprenticeship program), Prime recruits and trains new drivers. Prime touts its program as offering "[p]aid [a]pprenticeship [Commercial Driver's License (CDL)] [t]raining." After attending a four-day orientation, student drivers hit the road with a Prime truck driver, who acts as an on-the-job instructor. In this phase of the apprenticeship program, student drivers must log 10,000 miles as a driver or passenger, and, apart from an advance of $200 per week for food (which eventually must be repaid), the apprentices are not paid.[2] After [1] Because the motion to compel arbitration was made in connection with a motion to dismiss or stay, we glean the relevant facts from the operative complaint and the documents submitted to the district court in support of the motion. See Gove v. Career Sys. Dev. Corp., 689 F.3d 1, 2 (1st Cir. 2012).

[2] This arrangement allows Prime to transport its shipments in a more economical and efficient manner. Under United States Department of Transportation regulations, a truck driver's "[o]n-duty time" includes "[a]ll driving time" as well as a host of other non-driving tasks, including time spent supervising a student driver who is behind the wheel. 49 C.F.R. § 395.2.In any fourteen-hour period of on-duty time, a truck driver has only eleven hours of driving time. Id. § 395.3(a)(2)-(3)(i). After a Prime instructor driver has maxed out his or her eleven hours of driving time, the instructor driver still has three more hours of on-duty time remaining.Thus, once an instructor driver has exhausted his or her own driving time, a student driver can drive the truck toward its ultimate destination for up to three more hours, and Prime does not pay the student driver for this bonus driving time.

completing the supervised-driving period, the student driver takes the examination for a CDL and then must drive 30,000 more miles as a B2 company driver trainee (B2 trainee). Prime pays its B2 trainees fourteen cents per mile. At the conclusion of the B2 trainee portion of the apprenticeship program, the apprentices attend the district court in support of the motion. See Gove v. Career Sys. Dev. Corp., 689 F.3d 1, 2 (1st Cir. 2012). additional orientation classes for approximately one week. Apprentices are not paid for time spent in this orientation.

The plaintiff, Dominic Oliveira, is an alum of Prime's apprenticeship program. He was not paid for the time he spent in orientation and was paid on a per-mile basis while driving as a B2 trainee, although Prime docked his pay during this period to recoup the $200 advances that it paid him during the supervised-driving period.

Drivers are relieved of paying tuition for the apprenticeship program as long as they remain with Prime for one year as either company drivers or independent contractors. After completing the program, drivers choose between the two options, and Prime offers a $100 bonus to those who elect independent- contractor status When Oliveira finished the apprenticeship program, Prime representatives informed him that he would make more money as an independent contractor than a company driver. Prime directed Oliveira to Abacus Accounting (Abacus) — a company with offices on the second floor of Prime's building — to assist him in forming a limited liability company (LLC). After Oliveira filled out a form provided by Abacus and listed his preferred LLC names, Abacus created Hallmark Trucking LLC (Hallmark) on Oliveira's behalf.

Prime then directed Oliveira to the offices of Success Leasing (Success) — located on the first floor of the same building - 5 - — for help in securing a truck. After selecting a truck, Oliveira was informed that his first load of freight was ready to be trucked for Prime, and he was instructed to sign the highlighted portions of several documents before hitting the road. He hastily did so, and Prime then steered him towards its company store, where he purchased — on credit — $5,000 worth of truck equipment and fuel.

Among the documents Oliveira signed was an Independent Contractor Operating Agreement (the contract) between Prime and Hallmark.[3] The contract specified that the relationship between the parties was that "of carrier and independent contractor and not an employer/employee relationship" and that "[Oliveira is] and shall be deemed for all purposes to be an independent contractor, not an employee of Prime."[4] Additionally, under the contract, Oliveira retained the rights to provide transportation services to companies besides Prime,[5] refuse to haul any load

[3] Around ten months later, Hallmark and Prime executed another Independent Contractor Operating Agreement. Because the pertinent language of the two agreements is identical, we refer to them collectively as "the contract." When quoting the contract in this opinion, we omit any unnecessary capitalization.

[4] Although the contract was between Prime and Hallmark, Prime has — with one small exception discussed below, see note 15, infra — treated the contract as one between Prime and Oliveira. We similarly treat Oliveira and Hallmark interchangeably.

[5] Before he could drive for another carrier, however, Oliveira was contractually obligated to give Prime five

offered by Prime, and determine his own driving times and delivery routes. The contract also obligated Oliveira to pay all operating and maintenance expenses, including taxes, incurred in connection with his use of the truck leased from Success. Finally, the contract contained an arbitration clause under which the parties agreed to arbitrate "any disputes arising under, arising out of or relating to [the contract], . . . including the arbitrability of disputes between the parties."[6]

Oliveira alleges that, during his Hallmark days, Prime exercised significant control over his work. According to Oliveira, Prime required him to transport Prime shipments, mandated that he complete Prime training courses and abide by its procedures, and controlled his schedule. Because of Prime's pervasive involvement in his trucking operation, Oliveira was unable to work for any other trucking or shipping companies.

Prime consistently shortchanged Oliveira during his time as an independent contractor. Eventually, Oliveira — frustrated and, he alleges, unlawfully underpaid — stopped driving for Prime. It was a short-lived separation, however; Prime rehired Oliveira a month later, this time as a company driv-days' advance notice and to "remove all identification devices, licenses and base plates from the [truck] and return [them] to Prime."

[6] The arbitration provision also specified that "arbitration between the parties will be governed by the Commercial Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association [(AAA)]."

er. Oliveira alleges that his job responsibilities as a company driver were "substantially identical" to those he had as an independent contractor. Job responsibilities were not the only constant; Oliveira's pay as a company driver was as paltry as ever.

Oliveira filed this class action against Prime, alleging that Prime violated the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), 29 U.S.C. §§ 201-219, as well as the Missouri minimum-wage statute, by failing to pay its truck drivers minimum wage. Oliveira also asserted a class claim for breach of contract or unjust enrichment and an individual claim for violation of Maine labor statutes. Prime moved to compel arbitration under the FAA and stay the proceedings or, alternatively, to dismiss the complaint for improper venue and the breach of contract/unjust enrichment count for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.[7] In its motion, Prime asserted that "Oliveira . . . entered into an Independent Contractor Operating Agreement with . . . Prime . . . to work as an owner-operator truck driver." (Emphasis added.)

In response, Oliveira argued that, because he was not a party to the contract between Prime and Hallmark, he could not be personally bound by any of its provisions, including the arbitration clause. He further contended that the motion to compel arbitration should be denied because, among other reasons, the contract is exempted from the FAA under § 1. He also argued that the question of the applicability of [7] Because the district court never addressed the alternative arguments for dismissal and Prime has not pressed them on appeal, we focus only on the motion to compel arbitration.

the § 1 exemption was one for the court, and not an arbitrator, to decide.

Prime disputed Oliveira's argument that he could not be personally bound by the contract between Prime and Hallmark, stating that "Oliveira and Hallmark Trucking are factually one and the same." Prime also took issue with both of Oliveira's other arguments, contending that the § 1 exemption does not include independent-contractor agreements and, in any event, the question of whether the § 1 exemption applies is a question of arbitrability that the parties had delegated to the arbitrator.[8]

The district court proceeded straight to the FAA issues and concluded that the question of the applicability of the § 1 exemption was for the court, and not an arbitrator, to decide. And it determined that it could not yet answer that question because (1) the "contracts of employment" language of the § 1 exemption does not extend to independent contractors; and (2) discovery was needed on the issue of whether Oliveira was a Prime employee or an independent contractor before the court could decide whether the contract was a contract of employment under the § 1

[8] The parties also squabbled over whether Oliveira's claims arising from periods of time in which the contract was not in effect — during Oliveira's pre-contract time in the apprenticeship program and his post-contract stint as a company driver — were arbitrable under the arbitration clause of the contract. The district court did not resolve the issue, electing instead to focus on the question of whether the § 1 exemption applied.

exemption.[9] The district court therefore denied Prime's motion to compel arbitration without prejudice and permitted the parties to conduct discovery on Oliveira's employment status. Prime timely appealed.[10]

Analysis

The FAA lies at the center of the two questions raised by this appeal. Thus, before tackling those questions, we first briefly outline the statutory framework.

To combat deep-rooted judicial hostility towards arbitration agreements, Congress enacted the FAA in 1925. See Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams, 532 U.S. 105, 111 (2001). Section 2 of the FAA enshrines the "liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements," Moses H. Cone Mem'l Hosp. v. Mercury Constr. Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24 (1983), by declaring that an arbitration agreement in "a contract evidencing a transaction involving commerce . . . shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract," 9 U.S.C. § 2.

And the FAA does not simply talk the talk. Instead, two separate provisions provide the bite to [9] The district court noted that the parties did not dispute that Oliveira, as a truck driver, was a transportation worker under the § 1 exemption.

[10] Although interlocutory orders are ordinarily not immediately appealable, the FAA permits immediate appeal from an order denying a motion to compel arbitration. See 9 U.S.C. § 16(a)(1)(B); Gove, 689 F.3d at 3-4 n.1. We review the denial of a motion to compel arbitration de novo. Gove, 689 F.3d at 4.

back up § 2's bark. See Rent-A-Ctr., W., Inc. v. Jackson, 561 U.S. 63, 70 (2010). First, under § 3, a party may obtain a stay of federal-court litigation pending arbitration. See 9 U.S.C. § 3. Second, § 4 authorizes district courts to grant motions to compel arbitration. See id. § 4.

The scope of the FAA, however, is not unbounded. Section 1 of the FAA provides that the Act shall not apply "to contracts of employment of seamen, railroad employees, or any other class of workers engaged in foreign or interstate commerce." Id. § 1. The Supreme Court has interpreted this section to "exempt[] from the FAA . . . contracts of employment of transportation workers." Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 119.

This case presents us with two questions pertaining to the § 1 exemption. We address each question in turn.

A. Who Decides Whether the § 1 Exemption Applies?

The question of whether the district court or the arbitrator decides the applicability of the § 1 exemption is one of first impression in this circuit. The parties champion dueling out-of-circuit precedent in support of their respective positions on this issue. Relying on the Eighth Circuit's decision in Green v. SuperShuttle International, Inc., 653 F.3d 766 (8th Cir. 2011), Prime argues that the question of whether the § 1 exemption applies is a question of arbitrability that must be decided by the arbitrator where, as here, the parties have delegated such questions to the arbitrator.

In Green, the plaintiffs, a class of shuttle-bus drivers, alleged that the defendant, a shuttle-bus company, misclassified the drivers as franchisees instead of classifying them as employees. 653 F.3d at 767-68. When the defendant moved under the FAA to compel arbitration pursuant to the arbitration clause contained in the parties' contracts, the plaintiffs countered that their contract was outside the scope of the FAA by virtue of the § 1 exemption. Id. at 768. The Eighth Circuit upheld the district court's grant of the defendant's motion, concluding that "[a]pplication of the FAA's transportation worker exemption is a threshold question of arbitrability" in the parties' dispute. Id. at 769. Because the parties' agreements incorporated the AAA rules, which provide that the arbitrator has the power to determine his or her own jurisdiction, the court concluded that the parties agreed to allow the arbitrator to determine threshold questions of arbitrability, including the applicability of the § 1 exemption. Id.

With Green as its guide, Prime offers several reasons why the question of § 1's applicability is one for the arbitrator to determine, but each of these arguments flows from the Green court's characterization of this issue as a question of arbitrability. The case on which Oliveira relies — the Ninth Circuit's decision in In re Van Dusen, 654 F.3d 838 (9th Cir. 2011) — considered this characterization to be a flawed starting premise.

Van Dusen arose on facts strikingly similar to those in this case; the plaintiffs, interstate truck drivers, alleged that one of the defendants, a trucking company, misclassified its truck drivers as independent contractors to circumvent the requirements of the FLSA and parallel state laws. See id. at 840; see also Van Dusen v. Swift Transp. Co., 830 F.3d 893, 895 (9th Cir. 2016) (later appeal in same case).

The defendant moved to compel arbitration under the FAA, and the plaintiffs opposed that motion, asserting that the § 1 exemption applied to their contracts. Van Dusen, 654 F.3d at 840. The district court ordered arbitration, concluding that the question of whether the § 1 exemption applied was one for the arbitrator to decide in the first instance. Id. After the district court refused the plaintiffs' request for certification of an interlocutory appeal, the plaintiffs sought mandamus relief before the Ninth Circuit. Id.

The Ninth Circuit ultimately declined to issue the extraordinary remedy of mandamus relief because the district court's conclusion was not clearly erroneous in light of the dearth of federal appellate authority addressing the issue and the general federal policy in favor of arbitration. Id. at 845-46. The court nonetheless outlined why "the best reading of the law requires the district court to assess whether [the §] 1 exemption applies before ordering arbitration" under the FAA. Id. at 846. The court explained that, because a district court's authority to compel arbitration under the FAA exists only where the Act applies, "a district court has no authority to compel arbitration under Section 4 [of the FAA] where Section 1 exempts the underlying contract from the FAA's provisions." Id. at 843. The court elaborated:

> In essence, [the d]efendants and the [d]istrict [c]ourt have adopted the position that contracting parties may invoke the authority of the FAA to decide the question of whether the parties can invoke the authority of the FAA. This position puts the cart before the horse: Section 4 has simply no applicability where Section 1 exempts a contract from the FAA, and private contracting > parties cannot, through the insertion of a delegation clause, confer authority upon a district court that Congress chose to withhold.

Id. at 844. The court also concluded that the question of whether the § 1 exemption applies "does not fit within th[e] definition" of "questions of arbitrability." Id.

After careful consideration of these competing cases, we are persuaded that the Ninth Circuit hit the nail on the head, and we therefore hold that the issue of whether the § 1 exemption applies presents a question of "whether the FAA confers authority on the district court to compel arbitration" and not a question of arbitrability. Id.

"The Supreme Court defines 'questions of arbitrability' as questions of 'whether the parties have submitted a particular dispute to arbitration.'" Id. (quoting Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 537 U.S. 79, 83 (2002)); see also Rent-A-Ctr., 561 U.S. at 68-69 ("[P]arties can agree to arbitrate 'gateway' questions of 'arbitrability,' such as whether the parties have agreed to arbitrate or whether their agreement covers a particular controversy."); Arbitrability, Black's Law Dictionary (10th ed. 2014) (defining arbitrability as "[t]he status, under applicable law, of a dispute's being or not being resolvable by arbitrators because of the subject matter"). In this case, determining whether the § 1 exemption applies to the contract does not entail any consideration of whether Prime and Oliveira have agreed to submit a dispute to arbitration; instead, it raises the "distinct inquiry" of whether the district court has the authority to act under the FAA — specifically, the authority under § 4 to compel the parties to engage in arbitration. Van Dusen, 654 F.3d at 844.

Therefore, as the Ninth Circuit explained in Van Dusen, the question of the court's authority to act under the FAA is an "antecedent determination" for the district court to make before it can compel arbitration under the Act. Id. at 843. Prime's argument to the contrary "puts the cart before the horse" and makes no sense. Id. at 844. The following scenario readily demonstrates why this is so: First, assume that two parties enter into a contract containing an arbitration clause with language identical to that contained in the contract in this case, including a provision delegating questions of arbitrability to the arbitrator. Second, assume that, unlike in this case, the parties are in agreement that the contract involved is clearly a contract of employment of a transportation worker. Third, assume that, as in this case, one of the parties, relying solely on the FAA, moves to compel arbitration. Taking Prime's position to its logical conclusion, the district court would be obligated to grant the motion because the parties have agreed to allow the arbitrator to decide questions of arbitrability, including whether the § 1 exemption applies. See Green, 653 F.3d at 769. This would be so even though the § 1 exemption indisputably applies to the contract, such that the district court had no authority to act under the FAA in the first place. See Van Dusen, 654 F.3d at 843 ("[A] district court has no authority to compel arbitration under Section 4 where Section 1 exempts the underlying contract from the FAA's provisions.").[11]

[11] When confronted with the logical extreme of its position at oral argument, Prime sought to qualify it to some degree. Prime insisted that, so long as the party seeking to compel arbitration had a good-faith basis for asserting

This position cannot be correct. When the only basis for seeking arbitration in federal court is the FAA, the district court can grant the requested relief only if it has authority to act under the FAA. See id. at 843. If the FAA does not apply, "private contracting parties cannot, through the insertion of a delegation clause, confer authority upon a district court [i.e., to compel arbitration under the FAA] that Congress chose to withhold." Id. at 844. Therefore, "the district court must make an antecedent determination that a contract is arbitrable under Section 1 of the FAA before ordering arbitration pursuant to Section 4." Id. at 843.

Because we reject Green's starting premise — that the issue of § 1's applicability is a question of arbitrability — we are unpersuaded by Green's reliance on a contract's incorporation of the AAA rules, which allow an arbitrator to determine his or her own jurisdiction. Where, as here, the parties dispute whether the district court has the authority to compel arbitration under the FAA, the extent of the arbitrator's jurisdiction is of no concern. Instead, we are concerned only with the question of whether the district court has authority to act under a federal stat-that the § 1 exemption did not apply, the question of the applicability of the § 1 exemption would need to be arbitrated under the delegation clause of the arbitration agreement. But, even with this minor qualification, Prime's position still boils down to the conclusion that the district court can compel arbitration under the FAA before determining whether it has authority to act under the FAA, even in a case where it might not have such authority. We do not accept this position.

ute. Nothing in the AAA rules — including the power to determine the arbitrator's jurisdiction — purports to allow the arbitrator to decide whether a federal district court has the authority to act under a federal statute.[12] [12] We are likewise unmoved by each of Prime's subsidiary arguments, all of which are grounded on the question-of arbitrability premise that we reject. For example, Prime's invocation of the liberal federal policy in favor of arbitration and its corollary, the principle that any doubts about the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration, goes nowhere because we are not confronted with a scope question. See Paul Revere Variable Annuity Ins. Co. v. Kirschhofer, 226 F.3d 15, 25-26 (1st Cir. 2000). Similarly, Prime's argument that, so long as the court is "satisfied that the making of the agreement for arbitration or the failure to comply therewith is not in issue," 9 U.S.C. § 4, the court must compel arbitration overlooks that one does not even approach the § 4 inquiry until one first determines that the § 1 exemption does not apply. See Van Dusen, 654 F.3d at 843-44. Finally, Prime's effort to compare the question of the applicability of the § 1 exemption to questions concerning the validity of an agreement or whether it can be enforced by the party seeking to compel arbitration — questions that can be referred to the arbitrator — is unavailing. Issues concerning alleged flaws with an agreement's validity or enforceability are fundamentally different than the issue of the district court's authority to act under the FAA in the first place. See id. at 844 ("[P]rivate contracting parties cannot, through the insertion of a delegation clause, confer authority upon a district court that Congress chose to withhold."). Additionally, it is not unusual for a court to first decide a specific challenge to the validity or enforceability of the arbitration clause that a party is seeking to enforce. See Rent-A-Ctr., 561 U.S. at 71; Prima Paint Corp. v. Flood & Conklin Mfg. Co., 388 U.S. 395, 403-04 (1967).

For all these reasons, we join our colleagues on the Ninth Circuit and hold that the question of whether the § 1 exemption applies is an antecedent determination that must be made by the district court before arbitration can be compelled under the FAA. But we can't stop there.

B. Independent Contractors and the § 1 Exemption

After concluding that it must decide for itself whether the § 1 exemption applies, the district court in this case ordered the parties to conduct factual discovery to determine whether Oliveira was truly an independent contractor or instead was in reality a Prime employee during the time that the contract was in place. Discovery on that issue was necessary, in the court's view, because "courts generally agree that the § 1 exemption does not extend to independent contractors."

On appeal, both parties challenge this aspect of the district court's order. Prime agrees that § 1 does not extend to independent contractors, but it argues that discovery on the relationship between the parties is inappropriate because Oliveira's status as a Prime employee or independent contractor should be decided by the arbitrator. See AT&T Techs., Inc. v. Comm'cns Workers of Am., 475 U.S. 643, 649 (1986) ("[I]n deciding whether the parties have agreed to submit a particular grievance to arbitration, a court is not to rule on the potential merits of the underlying claims."). Alternatively, Prime argues that if the district court must determine whether the § 1 exemption applies, it should consider only whether the face of the contract demonstrates an intent to make Oliveira an independent contractor. Oliveira, on the other hand, argues that the § 1 exemption covers the employment contracts of "all transportation workers, including independent contractors." If we agree with Oliveira, discovery is not needed.

Thus, the question presented is whether the § 1 exemption extends to transportation-worker agreements that establish or purport to establish independent-contractor relationships, and we review this issue of statutory interpretation de novo.[13] See Unit-

[13] We have considered the possibility, proposed by our dissenting colleague, of remanding without deciding this question of statutory interpretation. The benefit of this approach, according to the dissent, would be avoiding this difficult legal question now on the chance that the discovery contemplated by the district court might lead to a conclusion that Oliveira is not an independent contractor — a conclusion that would moot, for this case, the question whether independent contractors are within the exemption. But we do not view this approach as a viable option because the district court ordered discovery based on its legal conclusion that "the § 1 exemption does not extend to independent contractors." If that legal conclusion is incorrect — an issue that Oliveira sufficiently raised below and both parties have briefed on appeal — there is no need for discovery in the first place. Therefore, we will not adopt an approach that assumes away one of the live issues on appeal simply because the issue is a difficult one. Cf. Citizens United v. Fed. Election Comm'n, 558 U.S. 310, 375 (2010) (Roberts, C.J., concurring) ("It should go without saying . . . that we cannot embrace a narrow ground of decision simply because it is narrow; it must also be right. Thus while it is true that '[i]f it is not necessary to decide more, it is necessary not to decide more,' . . . sometimes it is necessary to decide more. There is a difference between judicial restraint and judicial abdication."). Finally, we note that we are not convinced that the dissent's approach in fact provides a narrower ground of decision; such an approach would require us to address Prime's contention (which the dissent implicitly rejects)

ed States v. Maldonado-Burgos, 844 F.3d 339, 340 (1st Cir. 2016). As always, the statutory text is our starting point. See id. The § 1 exemption provides that nothing contained in the FAA "shall apply to contracts of employment of seamen, railroad employees, or any other class of workers engaged in foreign or interstate commerce." 9 U.S.C. § 1 (emphasis added). The Supreme Court has declared that "[§] 1 exempts from the FAA only contracts of employment of transportation workers." Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 119.

Before embarking on our analysis, we first identify two issues that we need not decide. First, Prime does not dispute that Oliveira, whose work for Prime included driving a truck across state lines, is a "transportation worker" within the meaning of the § 1 exemption, as interpreted by Circuit City.[14] Thus, that discovery on the parties' relationship would render the contractual right to arbitration a nullity. Addressing that contention would present its own set of challenges, but, given the manner in which we decide the statutory-interpretation question, that issue is the one that need not be decided in this appeal.

14 The district court's decision indicated that the parties did not dispute this issue. Similarly, Prime did not argue in its opening brief that Oliveira is not a transportation worker. In a single sentence in its reply brief, Prime asserts that this court "has never extended the [§] 1 [e]xemption to truck drivers, as opposed to rail workers and seamen (the core workers of concern when Congress enacted the exemption)." To the extent that Prime intended this lone sentence to resurrect the transportation-worker issue in this case, we will not allow it. Any such "argument" is wholly undeveloped, see United States v. Sevilla-Oyola, 770 F.3d 1, 13 (1st Cir. 2014) ("Arguments

we have no need to definitively decide that issue. Second, we note that, although the parties to the contract are Prime and Hallmark, Prime has, both below and on appeal, treated the contract as one between Oliveira and Prime.[15] We do the same. There-raised in only a perfunctory and undeveloped manner are deemed waived on appeal."), and, moreover, an argument that makes its debut in a reply brief will not receive a warm ovation from us, see United States v. Arroyo-Blas, 783 F.3d 361, 366 n.5 (1st Cir. 2015) ("[A] legal argument made for the first time in an appellant's reply brief comes too late and need not be addressed." (quoting United States v. Brennan, 994 F.2d 918, 922 n.7 (1st Cir. 1993))). Finally, we note in passing that Prime's position has not been accepted elsewhere. See, e.g., Lenz v. Yellow Transp., Inc., 431 F.3d 348, 351 (8th Cir. 2005) ("Indisputably, if Lenz were a truck driver, he would be considered a transportation worker under § 1 of the FAA."); Harden v. Roadway Package Sys., Inc., 249 F.3d 1137, 1140 (9th Cir. 2001) ("As a delivery driver for RPS, Harden contracted to deliver packages 'throughout the United States, with connecting international service.' Thus, he engaged in interstate commerce that is exempt from the FAA.").

[15] Before the district court, Prime opposed Oliveira's argument that he could not be personally bound by the terms of the contract between Prime and Hallmark by arguing that "Oliveira and Hallmark Trucking are factually one and the same." Along similar lines, Prime stated in its opening brief that "Oliveira entered into an Independent Contractor Operating Agreement . . . with Prime" (emphasis added), and its brief proceeded on the assumption that Oliveira and Hallmark were interchangeable. In its reply brief, for the first time in this case, Prime relies on the fact that the contract was between Prime and Hallmark in arguing that the contract established an independent-contractor relationship. We need not decide fore, because the parties do not dispute that Oliveira is a transportation worker under § 1, we need not address whether an LLC or other corporate entity can itself qualify as a transportation worker. We also need not address the scope of the word "worker" in the residual clause of the § 1 exemption. Accordingly, we limit our focus to the issue of whether an agreement between a trucking company and an individual transportation worker cannot be a "contract of employment" within the meaning of § 1 if the agreement establishes or purports to establish an independent-contractor relationship.

Prime points out that the weight of district-court authority to consider the issue has concluded that the § 1 exemption does not extend to contracts that establish or purport to establish an independent-contractor relationship.[16] Several of these decisions whether Prime is judicially estopped from taking this position at this late juncture; it suffices that a reply brief is not the appropriate place to switch gears and offer new arguments. See Arroyo-Blas, 783 F.3d at 366 n.5.

[17] This assumption was implicit in Judge Ikuta's dissenting opinion in In re Swift Transportation Co., 830 F.3d 913 (9th Cir. 2016). The majority in Swift determined that mandamus relief was not warranted because the district court's proposed course of action — "resolv[ing] the § 1 question through discovery and a trial" — was not clearly erroneous; the district court's decision was not contrary to any Supreme Court or Ninth Circuit precedent, and "there [did] not appear to be any decisions from [the other] circuits on the question of whether the FAA compels a certain procedural choice in a district court's § 1 determination." Id. at 917. Judge Ikuta dissented, expressing her belief that the § 1 determination should be made solely from an examination of the contract's terms. Id. at 920-21 go[ne] along with the developing group consensus," In re Atlas IT Exp. Corp., 761 F.3d 177, 183 (1st Cir. 2014), without adding any independent analysis. The few district-court decisions that offer independent analysis to support the conclusion that the § 1 exemption does not cover independent-contractor agreements have, viewed collectively, offered two reasons for that conclusion: first, that this interpretation is consistent with the "strong and liberal federal policy favoring arbitral dispute resolution," Swift Transp., 288 F. Supp. 2d at 1035-36; see also Morning Star, 2015 WL 2408477, at *5; United Van Lines, 2006 WL 5003366, at *3; and, second, that such a rule is justified by the narrow construction that the Supreme Court has instructed courts to give the § 1 exemption, see United Van Lines, 2006 WL 5003366, at *3.

(Ikuta, J., dissenting). Implicit in Judge Ikuta's dissent is the assumption that independent-contractor agreements are not contracts of employment under the FAA. But there was good reason for that assumption in the circumstances of that case: Unlike in this case, none of the litigants argued that independent-contractor agreements of transportation workers are contracts of employment. And the district court in that case simply assumed — with no analysis or citation to authority — that the § 1 exemption covered only contracts between employers and employees. See Doe, 2015 WL 274092, at *3 ("Whether the parties formed an employment contract — that is whether plaintiffs were hired as employees — necessarily involves a factual inquiry apart from the contract itself.").

Prime urges us to add our voice to this "judicial chorus," but we are unwilling to do so. Interpreting a federal statute is not simply a numbers game. See In re Atlas IT Exp. Corp., 761 F.3d at 182-83 ("The numbers favoring a rule do not necessarily mean that the rule is the best one. Indeed, there is an observable phenomenon in our courts of appeal and elsewhere — sometimes called 'herding' or 'cascading' — where decisionmakers who first encounter a particular issue (i.e., the first court to consider a question) are more likely to rely on the record presented to them and their own reasoning, while later courts are increasingly more likely to simply go along with the developing group consensus."). Instead of simply tallying the score, "it is always incumbent on us to decide afresh any issue of first impression in our circuit." Id. at 183. After conducting that fresh look in this case, we are distinctly unpersuaded by the district courts' treatment of this issue.

The fatal flaw in the district-court authority on which Prime relies is a failure to closely examine the statutory text — the critical first step in any statutory-interpretation inquiry. See Maldonado-Burgos, 844 F.3d at 340. Because Congress did not provide a definition for the phrase "contracts of employment" in the FAA, we "give it its ordinary meaning." United States v. Stefanik, 674 F.3d 71, 77 (1st Cir. 2012) (quoting United States v. Santos, 553 U.S. 507, 511 (2008)). And we discern the ordinary meaning of the phrase at the time Congress enacted the FAA in 1925. See Perrin v. United States, 444 U.S. 37, 42 (1979) ("A fundamental canon of statutory construction is that, unless otherwise defined, words will be interpreted as taking their ordinary, contemporary, common meaning. Therefore, we look to the ordinary meaning of the term . . . at the time Congress enacted the statute . . . ." (citation omitted)); see also Sandifer v. U.S. Steel Corp., 134 S. Ct. 870, 876 (2014) (consulting "[d]ictionaries from the era of [statutory provision's] enactment" to espy ordinary meaning of undefined term); Carcieri v. Salazar, 555 U.S. 379, 388 (2009) ("We begin with the ordinary meaning of the word 'now,' as understood when the [statute] was enacted.").[18] We now turn to that task.

[18] At oral argument, Prime insisted that the Supreme Court in Circuit City rejected this approach for discerning the plain meaning of the FAA's text. But the Court did no such thing. In that case, the Court was confronted with an argument that, "because the FAA was enacted when congressional authority to regulate under the commerce power was to a large extent confined by [Supreme Court] decisions," the phrase "engaged in commerce" in § 1 should be interpreted as "expressing the outer limits of Congress'[s] power as then understood." Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 116. The Court rejected this argument, which it characterized as "[a] variable standard" depending on "shifts in the Court's Commerce Clause cases" that would require courts to "take into account the scope of the Commerce Clause, as then elaborated by the Court, at the date of the FAA's enactment in order to interpret what the statute means now." Id. at 116-17. The Court reasoned that "[i]t would be unwieldy for Congress, for the Court, and for litigants to be required to deconstruct statutory Commerce Clause phrases depending upon the year of a particular statutory enactment." Id. at 118. In this case, by contrast, our attempt to discern the ordinary meaning of the phrase "contracts of employment" does not require us to sort through paradigm shifts in Supreme Court precedent but simply to apply the "fundamental canon of statutory construction" that undefined statutory terms should be given their ordinary meaning at the time of the statute's enactment, Sandifer, 134 S. Ct. at 876 (quoting Perrin, 444 U.S. at 42) — a canon that has been applied in FAA cases since Circuit City. See, e.g., Conrad

1. Ordinary Meaning of Statutory Text

Oliveira argues that the phrase "contracts of employment" contained in § 1 means simply "agreements to do work." We agree. This interpretation is consistent with the ordinary meaning of the phrase at the time Congress enacted the FAA.

Dictionaries from the era of the FAA's enactment confirm that the ordinary meaning of "contracts of employment" in 1925 was agreements to perform work. See Webster's New International Dictionary of the English Language 488 (W.T. Harris & F. Sturges Allen eds., 1923) (defining "contract" when used as noun as "[a]n agreement between two or more persons to do or forbear something"); id. at 718 (defining "employment" as "[a]ct of employing, or state of being employed" and listing "work" as synonym for "employment"); id. (defining "employ" as "[t]o make use of the services of; to have or keep at work; to give employment to"); see also Webster's Collegiate Dictionary 329 (3d ed. 1925) (providing similar definition of "employment" and similarly listing "work" as synonym for "employment"); id. (defining "employ" as "[t]o make use of; use" and "[t]o give employment or work to" and explaining "[e]mploy is specifically used to emphasize the idea of service to be rendered"). In other words, these contemporary dictionaries do not

v. Phone Directories Co., 585 F.3d 1376, 1381-82 & n.1 (10th Cir. 2009) (in interpreting undefined term in § 16 of FAA, consulting dictionary from era of § 16's enactment).

suggest that "contracts of employment" distinguishes employees from independent contractors.[19]

Additionally, this ordinary meaning of "contracts of employment" is further supported by other authorities from the era of the FAA's enactment, which suggest that the phrase can encompass agreements of independent contractors to perform work. See, e.g., Annotation, Teamster as Independent Contractor Under Workmen's Compensation Acts, 42 A.L.R.

[19] Although not referenced by either party, we note that the current edition of Black's Law Dictionary indicates that the earliest known use of the phrase "employment contract" was 1927 — two years after the FAA's enactment. See Employment Contract, Black's Law Dictionary (10th ed. 2014); id. at xxxi (explaining that "[t]he parenthetical dates preceding many of the definitions show the earliest known use of the word or phrase in English"). The current edition also indicates that "contract of employment" is a synonym for "employment contract," and it defines "employment contract" in a manner that arguably excludes independent contractors: "[a] contract between an employer and employee in which the terms and conditions of employment are stated." Employment Contract, Black's Law Dictionary (10th ed. 2014). It is unclear whether the unknown source from 1927 provided the basis for the current definition of "employment contract" or, instead, whether that source has merely been identified as the first known use of the phrase. We need not, however, dwell on this point because, as explained below, several sources from the era of the FAA's enactment use the phrase "contract of employment" to refer to independent contractors. Additionally, we note that the two editions of Black's Law Dictionary that bookend the FAA's enactment, see Black's Law Dictionary (3d ed. 1933); Black's Law Dictionary (2d ed. 1910), provide no definition for the phrases "contract of employment" or "employment contract."

(emphasis added)); Theophilus J. Moll, A Treatise on the Law of Independent Contractors & Employers' Liability 47-48 (1910) ("It has been laid down that the relation of master and servant will not be inferred in a case where it appears that the power of discharge was not an incident of the contract of employment." Prime seeks to downplay the significance of these other authorities, noting that they do not deal with the FAA. True enough, but the phrase "contracts of employment" must have some meaning, and Prime does not attempt to explain how its proposed interpretation is consistent with the ordinary meaning of the words used in the statute. And the lack of a textual anchor is not the only flaw in Prime's interpretation. In Circuit City, the Supreme Court noted "Congress'[s] demonstrated concern with transportation workers and their necessary role in the free flow of goods" at the time when it enacted the FAA. 532 U.S. at 121. Given that concern, the distinction that Prime advocates based on the precise employment status of the transportation worker would have been a strange one for Congress to draw: Both individuals who are independent contractors performing transportation work and employees performing that same work play the same necessary role in the free flow of goods.

1910))); Annotation, General Discussion of the Nature of the Relationship of Employer and Independent Contractor, 19 A.L.R. 226, 250 (1922) (discussing "the question whether a contract of employment is one of an independent quality").

Along similar lines, legal dictionaries from the era of the FAA's enactment used the term "employment" as part of the definition of "independent contractor." See, e.g., Independent Contractor, Ballentine's Law Dictionary (1930) (defining independent contractor as "[o]ne who, exercising an independent employment, contracts to do a piece of work according to his own methods and without being subject to the control of his employer except as to the result of the work"); Independent Contractor, Black's Law Dictionary (3d ed. 1933) (same); Independent Contractor, Black's Law Dictionary (2d ed. 1910) (same); 2 Francis Rawle, Bouvier's Law Dictionary & Concise Encyclopedia 1533 (3d rev. 1914) (same).

In sum, the combination of the ordinary meaning of the phrase "contracts of employment" and Prime's concession that Oliveira is a transportation worker compels the conclusion that the contract in this case is excluded from the FAA's reach. Because the contract is an agreement to perform work of a transportation worker, it is exempt from the FAA. We therefore decline to follow the lead of those courts that have simply assumed that contracts that establish or purport to establish independent-contractor relationships are not "contracts of employment" within the meaning of § 1.

2. Narrow Construction and Policy Favoring Arbitration

We also are unpersuaded by the two justifications that some district-court decisions put forward to support the conclusion that the § 1 exemption does not apply to contracts that establish or purport to establish independent-contractor relationships — that such an interpretation is consistent with the need to narrowly construe § 1 and the liberal federal policy favoring arbitration. In our view, neither consideration warrants retreat from the ordinary meaning of the statutory text.

To be sure, the Supreme Court has cautioned that the § 1 exemption must "be afforded a narrow construction." Circuit City, 532 U.S. at 118. Prime seizes on this pronouncement and insists that it forecloses our conclusion that the § 1 exemption applies to transportation-worker agreements that establish or purport to establish independent-contractor relationships. We disagree.

In Circuit City, the contract at issue was between Circuit City, a national retailer of consumer electronics, and Adams, a store sales counselor. 532 U.S. at 109-10. The Ninth Circuit had interpreted the § 1 exemption to exclude all contracts of employment from the FAA's reach. Id. at 112. In defense of this interpretation, Adams argued that the phrase "engaged in . . . commerce" in § 1 exempted from the FAA all employment contracts falling within Congress's commerce power. Id. at 114. The Supreme Court rejected this broad interpretation in favor of a narrower one that was compelled by the text and structure of § 1: "Section 1 exempts from the FAA only contracts of employment of transportation workers." Id. at 119; see id. at 114-15. Because the phrase "any other class of workers engaged in . . . commerce" appeared in the residual clause of § 1, id. at 114, the Court reasoned that "the residual clause should be read to give effect to the terms 'seamen' and 'railroad employees,' and should itself be controlled and defined by reference to the enumerated categories of workers which are recited just before it," id. at 115.

This context is critical. The Court announced the need for a narrow construction of the § 1 exemption in the course of "rejecting the contention that the meaning of the phrase 'engaged in commerce' in § 1 of the FAA should be given a broader construction than justified by its evident language." Id. at 118 (emphasis added). As the Court explained, this broader construction was doomed by the text itself; "the text of the FAA foreclose[d] the [broader] construction of § 1," id. at 119, and "undermine[d] any attempt to give the provision a sweeping, open- ended construction," id. at 118. The Court's narrower interpretation, by contrast, was based on "the precise reading" of that provision. Id. at 119.

It is one thing to say that statutory text compels adoption of a narrow construction over "an expansive construction . . . that goes beyond the meaning of the words Congress used." Id. Prime's argument is very different: It snatches up Circuit City's narrow-construction pronouncement, wholly ignores the context in which that pronouncement was made, and attempts to use it as an escape hatch to avoid the plain meaning of the § 1 exemption's text. But nothing in Circuit City suggests that the need for a narrow construction can override the plain meaning of the statutory language in this fashion, and we reject Prime's attempt to artificially restrict the plain meaning of the text.

Moreover, Oliveira is nothing like the sales counselor in Circuit City. Instead, the truck-driving work that he performs directly impacts "the free flow of goods." Id. at 121. Therefore, Circuit City's adoption of a narrow construction to cover only transportation workers and not sales counselors is no basis for this court to accept a constricted interpretation of the phrase "contracts of employment" that is inconsistent with both the ordinary meaning of the language used in § 1 and "Congress's demonstrated concern with transportation workers and their necessary role in the free flow of goods." Id. For these reasons, we do not view Circuit City or the narrow-construction principle as supporting Prime's interpretation that the § 1 exemption does not extend to independent contractors.

We are similarly unpersuaded by invocation of the federal policy in favor of arbitration. That policy cannot override the plain text of a statute. See EEOC v. Waffle House, Inc., 534 U.S. 279, 295 (2002) (rejecting notion that "the federal policy favoring arbitration trumps the plain language of Title VII and the contract"); cf. id. at 294 (explaining that, "[w]hile ambiguities in the language of the agreement should be resolved in favor of arbitration, we do not override the clear intent of the parties, or reach a result inconsistent with the plain text of the contract, simply because the policy favoring arbitration is implicated" and concluding that "the proarbitration policy goals of the FAA do not require the [EEOC] to relinquish its statutory authority if it has not agreed to do so" (citation omitted)); Paul Revere, 226 F.3d at 25 (rejecting "attempts to invoke the federal policy favoring arbitration" because "[t]hat policy simply cannot be used to paper over a deficiency in Article III standing"); Seminole Tribe of Fla. v. Florida, 517 U.S. 44, 116 n.13 (1996) (Souter, J., dissenting) ("[P]lain text is the Man of Steel in a confrontation with background principle[s] and postulates which limit and control." (internal citation and quotation marks omitted)). As we have explained, a careful examination of the ordinary meaning of the phrase "contracts of employment" — an effort eschewed by the district-court authority cited by Prime — supports our conclusion that the phrase means agreements to perform work and includes independent-contractor agreements. The federal policy favoring arbitration cannot erase this plain meaning.

3. Final Words

For these reasons, we hold that a transportation-worker agreement that establishes or purports to establish an independent-contractor relationship is a contract of employment under § 1. We emphasize that our holding is limited: It applies only when arbitration is sought under the FAA, and it has no impact on other avenues (such as state law) by which a party may compel arbitration.[21]

Conclusion

To recap, we hold that, when confronted with a motion to compel arbitration under § 4 of the FAA, the district court, and not the arbitrator, must decide whether the § 1 exemption applies. Additionally, we hold that transportation-worker agreements that establish or purport to establish independent-

[21] Prime insists that, even if the district court is powerless to compel arbitration under the FAA because the § 1 exemption applies, it still can request the district court to "compel arbitration on other grounds, such as state law, or use other tools at its disposal to enforce the parties' explicit agreement to arbitrate — such as dismissing or staying the case." For his part, Oliveira appears to suggest that this ship has sailed because Prime's motion to compel was based solely on the FAA. Prime counters that, to the extent Oliveira is under the impression that Prime has waived the right to compel arbitration on grounds other than the FAA, he is mistaken because no prejudice has been shown. We do not wade into this dispute. The fleeting references in both parties' briefs are hardly the stuff of developed argumentation, and this waiver issue was not addressed by the district court. If the parties desire to continue this fight in the district court, they are free to do so.

Along similar lines, although Prime argues in its opening brief that the arbitration provision covers disputes between the parties that arose before and after the time period in which the contract was in effect, it takes a different tack in its reply brief, imploring us to refrain from deciding this issue because the district court did not definitively rule on it below. We accept Prime's invitation and leave the issue for the district court to address in the first instance.

contractor relationships are "contracts of employment" within the meaning of the § 1 exemption.[22] Because the contract in this case is within the § 1 exemption, the FAA does not apply, and we consequently lack jurisdiction under 9 U.S.C. § 16(a)(1)(B) — the only conceivable basis for our jurisdiction over this interlocutory appeal. See Int'l Bhd. of Teamsters Local Union No. 50 v. Kienstra Precast, LLC, 702 F.3d 954, 957-58 (7th Cir. 2012). Accordingly, we affirm the district court's denial of Prime's motion to compel arbitration, and dismiss the appeal for lack of appellate jurisdiction.

-Concurring and Dissenting Opinion Follows-

BARBADORO, District Judge, concurring in part and dissenting in part. I agree with the majority that the applicability of the § 1 exemption is a threshold matter for the district court to decide. Where we part company is at the point where the majority decides to take on the difficult issue as to whether transportation-worker agreements that purport to create independent-contractor relationships are exempt from the Federal Arbitration Act. That, in my view, is an issue we need not decide now. Instead, if it ultimately proves necessary to determine whether the § 1 exemption covers all such independent-contractor agreements, the district court should do so in the first instance with the benefit of more in-depth briefing and a fully developed factual record.

[22] In light of this conclusion, we need not address the parties' arguments about the necessity and permissibility of discovery in the event that the § 1 exemption does not apply to independent-contractor agreements.

The scope of the § 1 exemption comes before us on what amounts to an interlocutory appeal. See Omni Tech Corp. v. MPC Sols. Sales, LLC, 432 F.3d 797, 800 (7th Cir. 2005). The district court did not reach any final judgment as to the exemption, instead dismissing New Prime's motion to compel arbitration without prejudice and allowing for discovery on Oliveira's employment status. Oliveira v. New Prime, Inc., 141 F. Supp. 3d 125, 135 (D. Mass. 2015). As there has been no final judgment in the district court, I hesitate to resolve an issue that is not necessary to the disposition of this appeal. See Doe v. Cape Elizabeth Sch. Dist., 832 F.3d 69, 86 (1st Cir. 2016) (declining to address unnecessary issue and deeming it prudent to allow district court to make determination in the first instance). And it is indeed unnecessary to determine the scope of the exemption at this time. If the case were remanded to the district court for discovery, the court might well rule that the nominally independent-contractor agreements between Oliveira and New Prime actually created an employer-employee relationship. In that circumstance, neither we nor the district court would have any occasion to categorically decide whether all transportation-worker agreements purporting to create independent-contractor relationships qualify for the § 1 exemption.

I am particularly reluctant to unnecessarily resolve an issue on an interlocutory appeal when, as is the case here, a number of factors counsel against doing so. Most fundamentally, deciding whether "contracts of employment" includes all transportation-worker agreements presents a challenging question of statutory interpretation. The statute itself provides little guidance. Further, as the majority notes, most courts that have considered independent-contractor agreements in the § 1 context have concluded that the exemption does not apply, and no other court has engaged in the kind of detailed analysis of ordinary meaning that characterizes the majority's opinion. We therefore have neither an example to guide and corroborate our analysis nor a contrary opinion to provide counterbalance.

Moreover, applying § 1 in this case requires venturing into the fact-bound, and notoriously precarious, field of employment-status determinations. Although the majority's categorical rule would eliminate the need for fact-finding on status, it could also lead to the over- and under-inclusiveness concerns typical of such rules. As Justice Rutledge observed in NLRB v. Hearst Publications, 322 U.S. 111 (1944): "Few problems in the law have given greater variety of application and conflict in results than the cases arising in the borderland between what is clearly an employer-employee relationship and what is clearly one of independent entrepreneurial dealing." Id. at 121 (subsequent history omitted). The doctrinal line separating employee from independent contractor is difficult to discern in the context of vicarious liability. See id. "It becomes more [difficult] when the field is expanded to include all of the possible applications of the distinction." Id. We find ourselves confronted by one of those "possible applications," making the issue before us all the more challenging. See Mandel v. Boston Phoenix, Inc., 456 F.3d 198, 206–07 (1st Cir. 2006) (vacating and remanding summary judgment order where, inter alia, there was little on-point federal or state case law and pertinent determination was fact-intensive).

Not only do we face a hard question — given that the contemporary meaning of § 1's language may differ from its meaning when adopted — but we do so without the aid of a well-developed district court record. Before the district court, the parties provided little briefing on the ordinary meaning of "contracts of employment" as of 1925. Oliveira initially argued that he was an employee of New Prime. He first briefed an ordinary-meaning argument in a short supplemental surreply submitted to the district court after a hearing on the motion to compel arbitration. Oliveira cited just two sources from the time of adoption. In a subsequent supplemental surreply, New Prime declined to address the ordinary-meaning issue head-on, instead only reiterating that the matter was for the arbitrator. The district court's order reflects this dearth of briefing. Rather than directly addressing the less-than-robust argument Oliveira raised in his supplemental brief, the court noted the extensive contrary case law and permitted discovery to resolve the case. See Oliveira, 141 F. Supp. 3d at 130–31, 135. When the ordinary-meaning issue reached this court, the record accordingly provided little guidance. See United States v. Clark, 445 U.S. 23, 38 (1980) (Rehnquist, J., dissenting) (recognizing usefulness of lower court opinions); Cape Elizabeth Sch. Dist., 832 F.3d at 84–85 (choosing not to decide unnecessary question where parties gave "scant attention" to issue in lower court).

The briefing before this court was also less than ideal. Although Oliveira devoted significant effort to arguing that the ordinary meaning of "contracts of employment" in 1925 included contracts with independent contractors, New Prime barely addressed the matter. It did not mention the ordinary-meaning argument in its opening brief, and spent only a page on the topic in its reply brief. At oral argument, New Prime merely insisted that ordinary-meaning analysis is inappropriate in the § 1 context. Where a court has the discretion to decide an issue, it should be wary of acting without the benefit of fully developed arguments on both sides. That is especially the case when we rule against the party with the less-developed argument.

Just as we have been presented with a one-sided view of the ordinary meaning of "contracts of employment," we have received a one-sided view of the facts. This appeal was taken early in the litigation between the parties, prior to any discovery that would have shed greater light on the facts underlying the dispute. The current factual record contains only Oliveira's unanswered complaint and some documents attached to the parties' motions. While the court is entitled to base its analysis on allegations in the complaint, Gove v. Career Sys. Dev. Corp., 689 F.3d 1, 2 (1st Cir. 2012), we should exercise added caution in denying affirmative relief to a defendant when our view of the facts is informed largely by the plaintiff's untested allegations.

Under these circumstances, our best option is to remand the § 1 exemption question to the district court so that discovery may proceed and the court may reach a final decision. If either party were to appeal any subsequent final decision of the district court, we would have the benefit of a better-developed factual record, more-focused briefing from both parties, and additional district court analysis. See Denmark v. Liberty Life Assur. Co. of Boston, 566 F.3d 1, 12 (1st Cir. 2009) (Lipez, J., concurring) (expressing concern over dicta in majority opinion "fashioned without the benefit of district court analysis or briefing by the parties").

The majority has done an impressive job of marshalling the arguments in support of its interpretation of § 1. I dissent not to take issue with the court's reasoning but merely to express my view that we would be better served in following a more cautious path.
